MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 22.

YOU CANNOT say of any place that it is the most beautiful in America, but you can say truly that there is no more beautiful place than this in America, or anywhere.

A long park runs along the edge of the ocean, and beyond it a beach with thousands bathing in the warm ocean. The timid northern eye, once alarmed by moderate loose flappy one-piece bathing suits, "stands at gaze," as Henry James might say, contemplating copper-bronze and mahogany-hued ladies on their way to and from the water.

THEIR NONCHALANCE, the lowness achieved in the back and the height in the front, the gracefully hopping figures, all actinic-tinted skin except for a wisp of material, strictly at the equator, fill you with new admiration for female courage. When you have seen ladies with frilled ankles and wrists bathing at Ocean Grove, and live to see this you feel that nature has exhausted her surprises, or, has she?

THIS WONDERFUL Miami Beach city, not to be described, bewilders you at first sight. Great lagoons, canals, magnificent private houses and hotels, bridges and causeways, three miles long, connecting with the mainland city, tens of thousands of palm trees, with dangling coconuts, bananas growing in backyards, dazzling sunshine flooding everything and a cool breeze blowing from the ocean.

You look, and understand the young man who asked the wonderful girl:

"Where have you been all my life?"

WHEN YOU come here for the first time, and you will come, being intelligent, you will wonder why it took you so long to arrive and how your nation could own such a winter sun parlor, and you knowing it only by hearsay.

Venice, compared with this, is like an English sparrow compared with two birds of paradise and an ostrich, and as for the French Riviera, it is only a feeble imitation, whether you consider the brilliant sky, the blue water, the flowers or the groves of fruit trees.

Flowering vines and bushes here grow over the tops of houses, and bear, literally, millions of big flowers. When you plant anything, you immediately buy a long ladder, so you can keep it cut back within your reach.

WHEN Charles Dillingham took his colored valet to gaze upon San Francisco's Golden Gate, he said to him:

"Now, Charles, you are looking at the Pacific Ocean, that reaches all the way over to China. It is much bigger than the Atlantic Ocean, to which you are accustomed."

Charles replied:

"Yes, sir, I see it is."

YOU LOOK, but do not really see all, or one-tenth of what is before you. Years of work, by Florida's citizens, endless millions of dollars have built this marvelous city, from the great harbor to the many canals leading inland, and from this magnificent beach city to the skyscrapers that rise toward the blue sky, on the mainland. Men have lost millions here, and so they have done in every other place, ultimately making up all their losses.

From now on, men will MAKE millions here. This is not advice to buy, heaven forbid that. But the water and gas are all squeezed out. And the solid growth and establishment of permanent values will proceed from now on.

LUCKILY, AMERICANS never really retire. They die, or go on working, unless they are imitations. To that fact, Florida and the whole country owe this Miami Beach.

Carl Fisher, having grown very rich while young, decided to enjoy life, and came here long ago to retire, in the sunshine. He has been working like a slave ever since.

A white-haired man told Fisher:

"I am trying to build a wooden road to that strip of beach, out yonder. My money has given out, and I don't know how I'll ever finish. I need that road to get my truck from farms and groves on the beach."

Fisher asked:

"How old are you?"

The man, John Collins, once a resident of New Jersey, replied:

"Seventy."

"Well," Fisher said, "if you are starting something new at that age, I'll start with you."

FISHER BUILT the three miles of causeway and bridge, of stone and concrete and wood, dredged sand from the shallow waters, making deep channels and incidentally created islands on which millions of dollars worth of real estate have been sold.

Fisher built golf courses, a museum, an aquarium, a dozen hotels, polo fields, scores of houses. HE STARTED WORKING AND COULD NOT STOP.

He built, among other things, a small island, and on it erected a beautiful shaft as a monument to Flagler, who built the railroads that bring people here.

FATAL GALES RIP ACROSS 5 STATES IN SOUTH

Rescuers Search Wreckage Of Buildings for Bodies; Property Damage Heavy

Associated Press.

Spring, a shrieking killer, raged across the Southland late yesterday, slaying with tornadic storm at least 214 persons in five states. Alabama suffered worst, with 169 deaths. Thirty are known dead in Georgia, 12 in Tennessee; two in Kentucky, and one in South Carolina.

Many persons were injured. Extensive property damage was done. Torrential rains fell, washing down upon the havoc the wind had done.

Storms elsewhere in the country counted casualties, too. Winds of tornadic force burst across Indiana, causing one death and considerable property loss. Ohio and Illinois felt storms of exceptional intensity, three deaths being reported in Chicago.

At Cochise, Ariz., one death occurred when the storm lifted two men who had lashed themselves to a tin roof, and dropped them heavily several hundred yards distant. One was killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 22.—(AP.)—At least 214 persons were killed in a series of tornadoes that struck widely-separated communities in five southern states last night and early today.

Alabama suffered most heavily. Restoration of crippled communication lines brought in a steadily increasing number of casualties. Just before noon the total for this state stood at 169. Thirty persons were known to have been killed in Georgia, 12 in Tennessee, two in Kentucky and one in South Carolina.

Property loss was heavy but no attempt has yet been made to estimate the extent. Hundreds were injured and scores of persons told of narrow escapes. Roads in farming communities were blocked by trees and debris and public as well as private buildings were damaged.

The tail end of the winds dipped into other Southern states.

SCENES OF DESOLATION

Daylight disclosed a desolate scene in Alabama communities hit by the winds. National guardsmen, nurses, doctors and volunteers combined in rescue work and hospitals and emergency quarters

Eclipse of Moon Terrifies Chinese

The beating of countless gongs and drums was heard throughout the city as the face of the moon was obscured at 8:30 p. m. The Chinese resorted to the customs of their ancestors to ward off evil spirits, fearing that the darkened moon portended further Japanese aggression in North China.

STORM CAUSES DAMAGE HERE

A 30-degree temperature drop today followed a 38-mile wind and rainstorm, flare of the terrific Southern gale which swept the Pittsburgh district early, toppling signs, causing landslides and considerable damage.

Heralded by the season's first thunderstorm, the peak wind lashed the city and environs for more than an hour, subsiding to 25 miles an hour as the army of workers moved to places of employment this morning.

SNOW FLURRIES DUE

Wayne King, Indian Bride on Honeymoon

The orchestra leader and Miss Janis, a full-blood Cherokee, were married here yesterday. She came here from Hollywood where she has been acting in the movies.

VOTE MACHINES TOO SMALL

Allegheny County's $1,100,000 worth of voting machines likely will again be idle at the April primaries, it was indicated today.

Maj. William T. Rees, chief clerk to the County Commissioners, reported to Commissioners Barr and Mansfield that a check-up showed the machines, which provide for nine party columns and 50 candidates, were two columns short.

Frank O'Connell, representing the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, makers, was to hold a conference with the Commissioners late today, at which a final report was to be made on use of the machines.

In addition to presidential preference, voters will cast ballots at the primaries, April 26, for national, state and judgeship candidates, delegates to the national conventions of the various parties and members of state and county committees.

Rumor of Poincare Death Brings Denial

PARIS, March 22.—(INS.)—Rumors were circulated throughout Paris today that Raymond Poincare, former Premier, had died at his home at Sampigny, in Lorraine.

A Sampigny city official, however, told International News Service he had talked with M. Poincare in the garden of his home this morning and that he was in good health.

Young Mother Sobs Tale Of Abandoning Baby

An unwed mother's eyes filled with tears in Morals Court today as she told her story of how circumstances had compelled her to abandon her year-old baby girl in a Greenfield hallway.

The mother, Mary White, 21, told Magistrate T. D. Jones of her parents' and brother's recent deaths which left her unable to support the child, of her attempt—blocked by a heavy snow storm—to be driven to Detroit where she could leave the child with a relative, and finally of her decision to leave it on the doorway of the home where she roomed, at 726 Montclair street.

She also told how she had tried vainly to have various charity organizations care for the child.

Inspector James Hoey corroborated the girl's story, and added that the child, known in police records only as "Josephine Greenfield," was now at the Roselia Foundling Asylum, recovering from pneumonia which it contracted in Saturday's storm.

At Roselia, Hoey said, arrangements have been made to care for the child and its mother, who for months has worked but three days a week as a grocery clerk.

Magistrate Jones accepted Hoey's plea for leniency and turned the mother over to social workers with instructions to place her in care of Roselia officials.

Gangster Eludes Lindy Hunt Raid

WOMAN VICTIM OF PLANE SOUGHT

River Dragged for Body as Wreckage Yields Pilot, Tangled in Parachute

By FRANK T. SMITH
Staff Correspondent.

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 22.—Search for the body of Dr. Carol S. Cole, St. Louis woman physician, a passenger on the eastbound mail-passenger plane wrecked early yesterday in the Ohio River, midway between Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, was resumed at daybreak today.

Darkness halted the dragging of the river, which started late yesterday afternoon, following discovery of the body of Pilot Hal George and the twisted and torn mass of wreckage of the plane, almost completely submerged in the river, 25 feet from the shore of Browns Island.

PARACHUTE TANGLED

The body of the pilot, tangled in his parachute, was found beneath the fuselage. The parachute had been fouled in the tail of the plane. Physicians who examined the body before its removal to Weirton said George had met death by drowning.

The plane had been missing since shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning when Pilot George, flying through a heavy sleet storm, wired Bettis Airport for weather conditions in Pittsburgh. A short time later Pennsylvania Railroad officials reported hearing a plane circling over Canonsburg, 10 miles from Bettis Field. Several persons in Weirton reported having heard the plane circling overhead. A taxi driver said he saw the plane, with its lights flashing groundward circling over the main business section of Weirton, not more than 100 feet aloft.

At daybreak yesterday searching parties started out from Bettis Field and Columbus in quest of the missing plane. At noon A. W. Fulmer and Mrs. J. S. Moore, of Steubenville, pilots of the Tristate Airways Service, took off from Steubenville.

WRECKAGE SIGHTED

Two hours later they sighted the wreckage—a wing tip protruding from the water. Landing at the risk of their own lives in a corn field on Browns Island, the pilots inspected their discovery.

Mrs. Moore said she had a premonition that if the plane had been wrecked, it had "cracked up" on Browns Island, or nearby. She added:

"Mr. Moore and I were returning to our home at 1:30 this morning. The sleet storm was at its height. We heard a plane and knew unless it found clear weather soon it would be forced down. When we heard a plane was missing we knew almost the exact spot to start our search."

George had been flying the air-mail in this section since last fall. He was known as a good "blind flier." Mrs. Cole boarded the plane at Lambert Field, St. Louis, at 8:40 Sunday night to fly to the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. William T. Bingham, who is ill in New York. Both wore parachutes.

Daughter Not Told Of Mother's Crash

EAST ORANGE, N. J., March 22.—(INS.)—Mrs. William T. Bingham, daughter of Dr. Carol Skinner Cole, of St. Louis, Mo., who was killed yesterday with the pilot of a mail plane which was bringing her here to her daughter's bedside, has not yet been told of her mother's death.

HOUSE NEARS VOTE ON SALES TAX PLAN

Members Reach Agreement For Showdown on Levies Before Recess Tonight

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The tax battle in the House moved speedily toward a climax today under an agreement making possible a vote on both inheritance taxes and the manufacturers' sale tax before adjournment tonight.

The inheritance tax section of the tax increase measure was taken up immediately after the House approved the agreement with indications a vote would be reached soon.

This fight will be followed by a decision on the highly controversial manufacturers' sales tax. Acting Chairman Crisp (Dem.), of Georgia, of the Ways and Means Committee, hinted he would hold the House in session for a final decision today.

'SOAK RICH' DRIVE

A new drive to "soak the rich" opened as the inheritance tax section was taken up.

Although the committee had proposed sharp increases in the inheritance tax, reaching a maximum of 40 per cent, the rates did not satisfy the bi-partisan "radical bloc" which has taken control of the House.

Representative Lewis (Dem.), of Maryland, proposed an amendment drastically raising the levies on the estates over $50,000,000 reaching a point where virtually half of the estate would be taken by the government.

Under the present inheritance tax the states receive 80 per cent of the tax collected. The Lewis plan would give all additional tax to the federal government.

LEWIS AMENDMENT

The Lewis amendment would yield a total of $969,440,540 a year from estates, of which $102,216,000 would go to states and the rest to the federal government.

The increase proposed by the "radical bloc" is more than $400,000,000 beyond that suggested by the committee.

The galleries were crowded as the House resumed its tax fight.

Crisp had explained to the House that he proposed to bring the sales tax to a decision "because I think it is for the best interest of the country that we act promptly."

A victory for opponents of the sales tax would mean that the House would have to devise other means of making up the $460,000,000 the tax is now estimated to produce.

Crisp held a conference with Representatives Laguardia (Rep.), of New York, Doughton (Dem.), of North Carolina, and Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, in his effort to smooth the way for a decision.

In the meantime the Ways and Means Committee voted new exemptions from the sales tax including all food, clothing, medicine and farm implements.

TOTAL CUT

The total of the sales tax had been cut from $595,000,000 to $455,000,000 by the additional exemptions proposed by the committee.

Opponents of the bill had added but $30,000,000 to the measure in their "soak the rich fight," Crisp said.

Thus, if the sales tax is defeated, the committee must find other ways of raising revenue. Crisp indicated that he was prepared to back an increase from two to three cents in the postage rate if the sales tax is beaten.

Speaker Garner had under consideration an appeal by Crisp to take the floor for the measure. Although this step is unusual, Garner was urged to do it to prevent the House from resuming its "runaway" attitude on the bill.

BLAINE SEEKING DRY FUND VOTE

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP.)—Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, today sought a vote on withdrawal of prohibition enforcement funds while anti-dry leaders circulated a petition asking the Judiciary Committee to report on repeal resolutions.

Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, circulated the petition in the form of a letter addressed to the Judiciary Committee, asking it to take early action on the resolutions proposing repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment. Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, author of the resolution before the committee, circulated the petition on the Republican side.

Senator Blaine is seeking a Senate roll call on elimination of the dry enforcement funds of $11,000,000 from the pending Justice Department appropriation bill. He is chairman of the judiciary subcommittee in charge of the repeal resolutions.

Senator Bingham also will seek a vote next week by the Manufacturers' Committee which now has the report of a sub-committee favoring his bill to authorize 4 per cent beer.

Lita Gray Chaplin's Wardrobe Attached

DAYTON, O., March 22.—(INS.)—Six trunks containing gowns and personal property of Lita Gray Chaplin, former wife of Charley Chaplin, were seized at the Union Station today to satisfy a $600 judgment obtained by the Van Cleve Hotel. Officials charged payment was stopped on three checks.

MAN SEIZED GRILLED, FREED

Suspect in Gang Massacre Escapes Trap in N. Y.; Women and Boy Released

NEW YORK, March 22.—(AP.)—After days of waiting, detectives rushed a Bronx apartment today in the hope of capturing Harry Fleischer, Detroit Purple gangster, for questioning about the kidnaped Lindbergh baby; but they missed their quarry.

They found instead of Fleischer only two women, a little boy and a man who said he was known both as Walter and Izzy Cohn.

Cohn was questioned at length, but finally released without any charge having been placed against him. Four detectives were stationed in the raided apartment, while Cohn was being examined in a nearby police station, but when he was released the guards were withdrawn.

ALL-NIGHT VIGIL

The raid was made after an all-night vigil by 30 police. When the signal was at last given detectives were posted in doorways along the Grand Concourse ready to take part in any fray that might result. Others went to the basement and roof of the five-story building and still more guarded the elevators to block all means of escape.

Fleischer is wanted in Detroit in connection with the killing of three racketeers in the Collingwood apartments.

Fleischer, who occasionally calls himself Louis Fleisch, has a record of 21 arrests and four convictions in Detroit, most of them in prohibition or robbery cases. He was arrested in New York in 1930 in connection with the kidnaping of Max Price, a New Haven, Conn., real estate dealer.

Three minor racketeers were shot to death in the apartment

Torch Burns Lock From Boxer's Neck

DETROIT, March 22.—(INS.)—Walter (Bumblebee) Davis, 45, one time boxer, today has a sore neck and a sense of caution. After nine hours' embarrassment, an acetylene torch and a piece of asbestos freed him from a patent fire lock he playfully placed about his neck.

Ex-Senator Reed To Leave Hospital

ROCHESTER, Minn., March 22.—(AP.)—Making steady progress toward recovery, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, was expected to leave the hospital within a few days, his physicians said today.

Reformer Gets Long Term For Shooting Boy

CHICAGO, March 22.—(INS.)—Daniel L. Gilday, aged reformer, who shot a youth who tried to help him to his home, today was sentenced to one to 14 years in the State Prison for assault.

Herman Knol, 17, victim of Gilday's gun, recovered after a long fight in a hospital. He testified the reformer appeared to be drunk and in need of assistance. Gilday declared he mistook the boy for a bandit.

Judge John Prystalski pronounced sentence when Gilday's attorney said he did not wish to argue a motion for a new trial. Sixty days was granted for an appeal.

REED PROTESTS GAS TAX RULING

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Senator David A. Reed today sent a vigorous protest to Clarence M. Charest, general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, against the recent ruling of the bureau denying Pennsylvania motorists the right to deduct gasoline taxes paid to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in computing income taxes paid to the federal government.

Characterizing the ruling as "inequitable," Senator Reed said it was in conflict not only with decisions of the bureau but with the law itself.

Pennsylvanians until June 1, 1931, were permitted to claim as an exemption when computing income taxes the amount paid in state gasoline tax. Since that time the exemption has not been permitted the consumer, although the wholesale distributor of gasoline who pays the gas tax to the state, although it actually comes out of the consumer's pocket, may claim such exemption.

M'ADOO SEES GARNER BOOM GROWING

California Delegation Will Go for Texan, Asserts Former Treasury Chief

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—William G. McAdoo said after a conference today with Speaker Garner that while the Texan was not seeking the Democratic presidential nomination the boom for him was growing and California would send an instructed delegation for him to Chicago.

The former Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, who heads the Garner-pledged slate of delegate candidates in the California primary in May, flew here last night on business and called on Mr. Garner at the Capitol to pay his respects. McAdoo said:

"We didn't discuss politics, but as I was leaving I expressed to him the opinion that while he was not seeking the nomination, California would send an instructed delegation for him just the same."

McAdoo said he talked government finances with the Speaker in a general way but didn't offer any advice, nor was any sought.

Holding a copy of the much-controverted tax bill, the tall Californian smiled and said:

"As a former Secretary of the Treasury, I don't care to talk through my hat on it. I want to familiarize myself with the details before I reach any conclusions."

Hoover Can't Stop Bonus, Patman Says

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(INS)—President Hoover cannot stop the movement for full payment of the soldiers bonus in the present session of Congress, Representative Patman (Dem.) of Texas, declared today.

His statement was made in answer to Representative Johnson (Rep.) of South Dakota, who notified President Hoover that sentiment now appears stronger against the cash bonus legislation. Patman said Johnson asserted Saturday the bonus plan would win, but issued a different statement after seeing Mr. Hoover.

Raiders' Shots Foil Double Wedding

CHICAGO, March 22.—(AP)—Detectives spoiled a double wedding planned for Easter Sunday with arrest of six robber suspects in an early morning hotel raid today, wounding one of the prospective bridegrooms.

Those seized were George Shaia, 22, and his fiancee, Miss Anna Mae Turner, 18. Fred Shaia, 31, Jesse Deering, 23, Robert Clawson, 22, and his fiancee, Mrs. Grace Schorse, 19, a widow. The younger Shaia was shot through the lungs when he tried to draw a revolver as detectives searched his brother.

Decline in U. S. Tax Receipts Continues

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—Further declines in income tax receipts were shown today in the Treasury statement for March 19, when $15,009,609 was collected against $16,206,279 for the comparative date of last year.

The receipts brought those for the month to $167,437,684 as compared with $299,435,575 for the same number of days last March. For the fiscal year income tax collections amounted to $825,559,026 as compared with $1,470,866,599 for the same period of the preceding year.

Flood Peril Grows As Ice Blocks River

YANKTON, S. D., March 22.—(AP)—A steadily rising river behind three miles of ice extending from near the mouth of the Missouri River to the bridge here caused increasing concern today.

Ice from upstream was packed from shore to shore with the river more than two miles wide above the gorge. Lowlands on both sides were flooded.

SIDING BLASTED IN MINE STRIKE

ATHENS, O., March 22.—(AP)—Railroad trackage on a spur leading into No. 6 mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company at Millfield was blown up by a dynamite explosion early today.

National Guard observers in the field, where hostilities have been threatened, said several sticks of dynamite were used to wreck the track, which is near a bridge dynamited Sunday.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—State police today arrested 11 pickets in the unauthorized anthracite strike at Jessup when they stoned miners on their way to the Underwood colliery.

Heavy Rain Curbs Luzerne Strikers

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—A driving rain apparently curbed activity in the unsanctioned strike of anthracite miners in Luzerne County today, for police reported the number of pickets on the street as smaller than yesterday.

Both day and night forces of city police were on duty as the miners went to work, but there were no disorders and no arrests. State police of the Wyoming barracks reported the situation in the outlying sections as quiet.

Walker, Boxer, Gives Son Mayor's Name

SHREWSBURY, N. J., March 22.—(INS)—Mickey Walker, pugilist, announced at his home that he will name his son, born last week, after the Mayor of New York—James Walker, Mickey said.

"We may as well make all the Walkers famous."

GUSTAV GREETS PRINCE, BRIDE

PARIS, March 22.—(AP)—King Gustav of Sweden was "perfectly charming" in greeting and forgiving his grandson, Prince Lennart, and the latter's commoner bride at Nice yesterday, the prince was quoted as saying by the Continental edition of the London Daily Mail today.

The couple was given "the kindliest reception" by both the King and the prince's father, Prince Wilhelm, the Mail said. Both his grandfather and his father, Prince Lennart was quoted as saying, kissed the bride on each cheek and gave her "a most beautiful wedding present."

King Gustav, he said, told the bride she must "take good care of my grandson and make him very happy."

Because of the objection of the King and Prince Wilhelm to the marriage, the prince and his bride, formerly Karin Nissvandt, daughter of a wealthy Stockholm business man, were married in London.

Dancer Being Sought For Abducting Child

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—(AP)—Accused of kidnaping a 3-year-old child to satisfy her desire for a baby, Miss Doreen Mordeaux, 26, dancer, was being sought today on a warrant sworn out by the father of the youngster, Fred Stone, of San Francisco.

Stone said the little girl, Evelyn, and his two other children, had been cared for by Mrs. Alice Munzy of San Francisco, since the death of Mrs. Stone several months ago. The father asserted Miss Mordeaux obtained possession of the child through a ruse.

Jailed After Pose As Upton Sinclair

KEENE, N. H., March 22.—(AP)—A man who described himself as Charles J. Adams, 30, of Riverside, Cal., and who police say was impersonating Upton Sinclair, the author, at a tavern in Alstead, was held in default of $500 bail today on a charge of defrauding the hotel.

Chicago Vice Crusader Confers With Lindbergh

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., March 22.—H. Wallace Caldwell, wealthy Chicagoan, former president of the Board of Education of that city and reputed member of the "Secret Six," conferred with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at his estate near Hopewell this afternoon regarding the mysterious kidnaping of the famous flier's son.

Significance was given the visit of Caldwell when it became known today that on last Thursday he had spent most of the day with Lindbergh, giving the latter information he had gathered in Chicago, which apparently had direct bearing on the kidnaping case.

Caldwell it was learned today arrived here on March 17 and went to the Lindbergh home where he conferred almost all day with Lindbergh. He went back to Chicago that night on some errand in connection with the case. He returned to Trenton yesterday morning.

Last night he made a mysterious trip to New York City and came back here this morning. Early this afternoon he left for Hopewell to talk with Lindbergh again.

CLUE IN DESERTED HOUSE

Meanwhile, an abandoned house close to the isolated Lindbergh home was to be broken into by New Jersey state troopers.

There was evidence to indicate pieces of Carolina pine wood found in a barn adjoining the farm house were similar to that used in the construction of the ladder which the kidnapers supposedly used in abducting the baby from its nursery.

The house itself, standing on a farm about half a mile from the road between Zion and Neshanic, appeared to have been occupied not long ago.

POLICE STILL BAFFLED

Not a single definite clue was available today in the investigation. This morning's official press bulletin was as negative and unpromising as any of the previous statements issued by Col. Schwartzkopf. It read:

"We know of no change in the status of Henry Johnson (the sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse) since he left these headquarters to be returned to the police authorities of Jersey City.

"There is no change in the status of Betty Gow.

GREENTREE BUS PLEA HEARD

With a proposed single fare of 20 cents or five fares for 75 cents, the Oriole Motor Coach Company today defended its application for permission to establish bus service between Crafton, Idlewood, Greentree and Pittsburgh before Examiner W. E. Best of the Public Service Commission.

The bus line representatives argued there are no facilities for transportation in the Poplar and Mansfield avenues district or along the Baldwin road. The application is opposed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

N. Y. Teachers Offer Aid To Unpaid Chicagoans

CHICAGO, March 22.—(AP)—The school teachers of New York have offered to help financially the 14,000 Chicago teachers who have received only ten weeks cash pay in nearly 11 months.

Leaders of local teacher organizations suggested in reply the New Yorkers use part of their salary checks to buy tax anticipation warrants of the Chicago Board of Education. Thus the teachers said, the New York instructors would get their money back with interest and cash would be available for school salaries here.

The proposal to assist the Chicago teachers was made wholly unofficially; it was announced by representatives of New York teacher organizations. Formal action was delayed pending further discussion here.

One proposal by the New York teachers was that teachers of the two cities appeal to the Citizens Reconstruction Organization to make loans to the Chicagoans.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak said when informed of the offer that he appreciated it, but believed funds would be obtained soon from banks to insure regular payment of salaries to all city and school board employes.

Ruth Judd Rages in Court, Prosecutor Quiz Balked

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 22.—(Universal)—Screaming with rage, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, sentenced to death as the outcome of a double trunk murder, yesterday created a courtroom scene of such violence that it was necessary to remove her forcibly to her cell.

Mrs. Judd's outburst came when Prosecuting Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews attempted to question her on financial matters and the paupers' oath to which she swore.

Attempts of Superior Court Judge Howard C. Speakman to silence the blonde slayer were futile as she broke away from the bailiff, the matron, the Sheriff and Dr. William C. Judd, her husband.

Mrs. Judd's tirade was directed against Andrews. She shouted that she was the victim of a frameup. She cried that she was attacked by Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson and killed them in self-defense.

The bailiff, the Sheriff and the matron picked Mrs. Judd up and carried her screaming down a long corridor and into the elevator that leads directly to the jail.

Judge Speakman finally ruled Prosecutor Andrews had filed his application to examine the slayer one day too late under the time allowed by law. Mrs. Judd was returned to the penitentiary in Florence.

PINCHOT URGES ARBITRATION CLAUSE IN DAVIS COAL BILL

GOVERNOR GIVES APPROVAL TO MEASURE

Letter Read at Hearing in Senate Favors Passage Of Stabilization Plan

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, advocated in a letter to a Senate mining sub-committee today that the Davis-Kelly bill to stabilize the soft coal industry be amended to provide for arbitration of labor disputes.

He said the bill should provide that the bituminous coal commission which would be created "shall act as arbitrator upon formal request of properly designated representatives of both parties to a dispute between miners and operators."

LETTER READ

Pinchot's letter, read as hearings on the measure were resumed, said "unavoidable business at Harrisburg" prevented him from accepting an invitation to testify.

The Governor wrote that he is "strongly in favor of the passage of the bill." He said:

"It is obvious that no single state can find its way out of the present trouble by itself."

Meanwhile, a coal operator—Charles E. Hosford, of Butler, Pa.—told the committee he had been informed there are instances in Western Pennsylvania of men being paid only $1 a day for loading coal.

Hosford, who proposed an alternative bill providing government supervision, was questioned by Senator Davis (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, when he testified that some coal operators now take a contract at a low rate after obtaining agreement from their men to work for proportionately low wages in order to have some work.

STARVATION WAGES

aying such a plan must result in starvation wages, Davis asked Hosford how low in his experience in Western Pennsylvania the wages had gone. Hosford said:

"I have been told of instances of coal being loaded as low as one dollar a day for the loader."

Davis exclaimed:

"Why we used to pay convicts in the mines $1 a day. Don't you think that's a disgraceful way to conduct business?"

The witness replied he "was in accord" with the Senator's efforts to remedy the situation. Hosford is president of the Butler Consolidated Coal Company.

LIFE FOR BRAVE IN CO-ED KILLING

GLOBE, Ariz., March 22—(INS.)—Golney (Mac) Seymour, 21, Apache Indian brave, must spend the rest of his life in prison for the murder of pretty Henrietta Schmerler, 25-year-old Columbia University research student, on the White River Reservation of Arizona last July 18.

Seymour was to appear for sentence today. A jury of 12 men, deliberating slightly more than five hours, found him guilty of murder in the first degree without the death penalty.

If Seymour realized the full import of the jury's verdict he did not betray his emotions.

Defense counsel declared that Miss Schmerler, who went to the reservation in June and occupied a small cabin, "threw herself into the arms of a good-looking young Indian."

ZIEGFELD ILL ON 60TH BIRTHDAY

The man who showed stage fans what beauty is got a lot of presents when he celebrated the sixtieth milestone yesterday. They included flowers, telephone calls and a birthday cake with six candles. He said:

"One candle for 10 years; six candles, 60 years."

Ziegfeld entered the show business in 1892. He imported several bands for the Chicago World's Fair. His first Follies was in 1907.

Texas Hotel Burns, Four Men Perish

DALLAS, Tex., March 22—(AP.)—Four men burned to death and four others were injured severely in a fire which destroyed a two-story hotel in the business district here early today.

Hazel Wood, 11, who also lived in the hotel, was awakened by the fire and she and her mother gave the alarm. The rear stairway of the building was blocked by the flames. Several other guests escaped.

Alfonso Visits Son, Ill at Lausanne

PARIS, March 22.—(AP.)—A dispatch to the continental edition of the London Daily Mail from Lausanne, Switzerland, today said former King Alfonso of Spain arrived there Sunday night to visit his son, the Prince of Asturias, whose health is again causing anxiety.

HONOR SLAYING TRIAL NEAR

HONOLULU, March 22.—(AP.)—The trial of four persons accused of shooting to death the alleged attacker of the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie probably will start April 4, Judge Charles S. Davis, who will preside, said yesterday.

The date will be set definitely Friday after the arrival of Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, to aid in the defense of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie; Lieut. Massie and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, enlisted naval men.

All four have pleaded not guilty of second degree murder of Joseph Kahahawai. The Hawaiian was found dead January 8 in an automobile driven by Mrs. Fortescue and occupied by Massie and Lord.

Kahahawai and four other men were accused by Mrs. Massie of attacking her. The jury disagreed as to their guilt, and Kahahawai was shot while the five were at liberty awaiting a second trial.

Wilkinsburg Bank To Serve Pupils

Savings accounts of the pupils of the Wilkinsburg schools will continue to be accepted at the Wilkinsburg Bank, it was announced today. Last week no collection of savings was made, and it was reported the accounts of the children would be transferred from the school plan to individual accounts. The matter was adjusted by the Standard Savings Service Company.

Dancer Weds Son Of Theater Owner

CHICAGO, March 22.—(AP.)—Miss Jane Love Ekis, a dancer in the musical production, "The Band Wagon," and Ralph Thomas Kettering, Jr., son of the owner of the Adelphi Theater, were married last night at a hotel by Judge Joseph Sabath.

AUTO TAG 'FIX' SHOWDOWN IN COUNCIL

Garland Presses for Action On Politicians' 'Racket' Fought by Businessmen

The Better Traffic Committee's codified traffic ordinance, which would eliminate the menace of tag "fixing" by politicians and others here, was to be considered by Council at its meeting this afternoon.

The ordinance was presented to the Council yesterday by Councilman Robert Garland. Whether the measure dies in committee or is passed finally at next Monday's regular meeting depends on the outcome of today's session.

Nearly 100 ordinances passed in recent years, regulating traffic control throughout the city, are contained in the new bill.

TAG FIXING CURB

The tag "fixing" preventative is recommendation that the issuing of traffic tags for parking and other violations be in the hands of the City Controller. He would be required to issue a report monthly to Council and the Mayor on the receipts of Traffic Court, number of tags issued and placed on cars, and disposition of cases.

Attempts at "fixing" would fail, the Better Traffic Committee believes. The resolution has been before previous Councils, but was defeated.

At least 200,000 tags were "fixed" during 1931, a comparison of tags issued by the Bureau of Police and Treasury receipts indicate. Public Safety Director James M. Clark has charged that most of the "fixes" were secured by councilmen and ward chairmen. "Fixing" is increased by politicians at election time, it is said.

POLITICAL "RACKET"

Tags received by persons who violate traffic regulations and "who vote the right way" are "fixed," it is charged. One out of four tags issued during the past four years was "fixed" or "lost" before it reached Traffic Court.

Aside from Garland, Councilman P. J. McArdle and Controller James P. Kerr are working for passage of the codified ordinance. Other Councilmen—members of Mayor Charles H. Klein's majority—have refused to comment on how they will vote.

The Retail Merchants' Association today issued a statement recommending passage of the ordinance. Assertions of Councilmen that the cost of advertising—estimated at $1,000—was excessive, were pointed out to be slender arguments against passage of the bill.

The association declared that in the face of the number of accidents and deaths, as well as loss of revenue from lax traffic violation action, the cost was negligible.

SCHOLARS PAY GOETHE HONOR

WEIMAR, Germany, March 22.—(AP.)—Germans and scholars the world over turned their thoughts to this small provincial capital where homage will be paid to the genius of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, who died here 100 years ago today.

Prof. Julius Peterson, president of the society, will conduct the memorial services, which will be followed by an evening performance of "Torquato Tasso."

During the day will be heard three other lecturers on Goethe, the literary genius who at the time of his death was better known among Germans as a statesman and research scientist.

American interest probably will be greatest in the address Thursday by Dr. Schreiber, of Yale, who will speak on "Goethe and the United States."

HOPE TO SAVE N. Y. OPERA

NEW YORK, March 22.—(INS.)—The Metropolitan Opera House—famed throughout the country as a center of musical art patronized by the most exclusive society leaders, who are holders of boxes in the brilliant "golden Horseshoe," may soon be only a memory.

Conferences were called today of some of the country's wealthiest men and women, who hitherto endowed operatic presentations, to consider whether the institution can be preserved.

Robert Fulton Cutting, head of the company that built the opera house, Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the board of the Metropolitan, and representatives of the Rockefeller, Morgan, Astor and Whitney and other families will meet to decide the fate of the opera company tomorrow.

Radio and broadcasting companies will submit plans intended to lessen the losses sustained by the operation of the Metropolitan.

Mussolini Reaffirms Program of Fascism

ROME, March 22.—(AP.)—In his annual message to his black shirts on the eve of the thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist organization, Premier Mussolini today reasserted Fascism's determination to live up to its slogan, "Combat."

Despite "economic unrest and severe privations," he said, Italy is calm and "we reaffirm our determination to meet and overcome all obstacles wherever we find them."

Vatican Rail Depot Used for First Time

VATICAN CITY, March 22.—(INS.)—The Vatican City railroad station was used for the first time today, although the order that no engine be allowed in the station until its inauguration was carried out completely.

A freight car carrying two marble columns, was pushed by man-power into the station. The engine was taken off at the Italian station.

HOUSE TO GUARD KLINE JURORS

District Attorney Andrew T. Park will assign several detectives to District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, to help safeguard the new venire of 60 jurors to be drawn Friday or Saturday, 12 of whom will be chosen to try Mayor Charles H. Kline and his deposed Director of Supplies, Bertram L. Succop, on misdemeanor charges, May 2.

The names of the jurors will be posted by Sheriff Lawrence Thompson, of Butler County, 20 days before the trial. Allegheny County detectives aided the Butler County and state authorities in bringing about the indictment of eight persons accused of embracery, resulting in the postponement of the Mayor's trial, by Judge Thomas J. Finletter, of Philadelphia, assigned to try the case and issuing an order for an new venire.

At the trial of the defendants, charged with embracery, witnesses will be produced, it was indicated by commonwealth counsel, to meetings which Roy C. Aiken, of Bakerstown, had with Robert Cunningham, Turtle Creek contractor, who makes his home at the William Penn Hotel. Aiken and Cunningham are under indictment.

The state's counsel are attaching considerable importance to the gatherings. Cunningham has been maintaining silence regarding the charges against him since his recent arrest.

Blame Not Placed In Crash Killing 7

REDLANDS, Cal., March 22.—(AP.)—Fixing no responsibility for the crash of an American Airways passenger airplane near here Saturday night which claimed seven lives, a Coroner's jury late yesterday returned an open verdict.

Officials of the air line testified the plane had been caught in a sudden fog local to San Gorgonio Pass. They said the weather was "excellent" when the plane left Phoenix, Ariz.

CHINA SWEPT BY EPIDEMIC, FAMINE

Smallpox Takes Heavy Toll; Rebellion in Manchuria Spreads to Soviet Border

SHANGHAI, March 22.—(AP.)—Disease and famine rode roughshod over China today in the path of the havoc of war.

As a result of the crowding of millions of refugees during the hostilities at Shanghai, an epidemic of smallpox is now sweeping the Orient, according to Dr. Wu Lien-Teh, director of the Chinese maritime quarantine service.

Sir John Hope-Simpson, British director of the China Famine Commission said at the same time famine conditions had again reached such a pass in some parts of the country that the people were eating the bark of trees, the chaff of threshed grain, and weeds, in order to ward off starvation.

Dr. Wu said the smallpox epidemic was the most widespread, and taking the heaviest toll, of any in many years.

Manchurian Revolt Spreads to Border

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, March 22.—(AP.)—A widespread revolt against the new Manchurian state of Ankuo has resulted in clashes on the edge of the Soviet Siberian border between Japanese and Chinese insurgents, Japanese military authorities said in messages received today.

The most severe fighting occurred Monday, the messages said, when Chinese insurgents engaged an infantry detachment of Gen. Jiro Tamon's Japanese brigade at Manhuto, on the southern end of Lake Birten. This is only a short distance from the Russian border, 50 miles northeast of Hunhua, eastern terminus of the uncompleted branch of the railway leading toward the Korean border.

The Chinese lost 150 killed and the Japanese 13, the Japanese military reported. Fifteen Japanese were wounded.

Gen. Tamon received orders today to send reinforcements immediately to Imienpo as the result of new clashes between Japanese troops and Manchurian rebels.

DENY MASSING TROOPS

MOSCOW, March 22.—(INS.)—Both Japan and Russia were on record today with denials of troop concentration along Far Eastern borders and of having aggressive intentions against each other.

Both stands were made public in an official Soviet foreign office communique, the Japanese viewpoint coming through Ambassador Koki Hirota in conferences with L. M. Karakhan, acting foreign commissar. The Japanese statements were in reply to the Soviet note of March 5 asking details regarding Japanese activity along Soviet borders.

Japan holds she has not violated the Portsmouth Treaty in moving troops over the Chinese Eastern Railway, half-owned by Russia, since she had no aggressive intention in doing so. Japan also denied aiding White Russians in activities against the Soviet Republic.

BOY STARTING FATAL RIOT TESTIFIES

Witnesses Deny Stones Were Hurled in Fight Killing Arnold City Man

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 22.—Benny Cimalsky, 21, today on the witness stand admitted throwing the egg that started the Arnold City strike riot last June 23, resulting in the death of Mike Philipovitch.

Testifying for the Commonwealth, in the trial of a mine superintendent and eight guards for the slaying of Philipovich, Cimalsky said he picked up the egg from a pile at the roadside.

FIRING BEGUN

After he threw it at a truck carrying miners on their way to work at Princeton, he said, the guns started popping.

No stones were thrown from the strikers' ranks, so far as he knew, the witness testified.

Paul Hadrava, who had told police that while on the truck going to work he had heard something whizz by his head, presumably a stone or a bullet, today repudiated the story and denied he had heard anything.

FEARED FOR JOB

Benny Robella, one of the witnesses who declared he saw the mine police send a shower of lead into the ranks of the strikers, admitted that he told a different story to the officers on the day of the trouble. He said:

"I told them that so I would not lose my job with the Pittsburgh Coal Company."

Identification of Yoder as the man who fired his shot gun at Philopovich was made by William Hawk, William Kearns and Oscovich. They said that after Yoder had emptied his revolver into the crowd, he went to a nearby coupe, obtained a shotgun and at the command of Butch Halstead, driver of the truck, fired. Philopovich fell mortally wounded.

POWERS RITES PLAN DELAYED

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 22.—(AP)—The body of Harry F. Powers, mass slayer who was hanged Friday night, remains in the prison morgue. Burial arrangements will not be completed until Warden A. C. Scroggins returns from a business trip to Charleston.

The shell-rimmed glasses and a signet ring which Powers handed to the warden on the scaffold have been mailed to Mrs. Powers at Clarksburg, as requested by the condemned man.

Hoover Sets May 1 As Child Health Day

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—Seeking a wider opportunity for the physical and mental development of American children, President Hoover yesterday issued an official proclamation, setting aside May 1, 1932, as Child Health Day.

The proclamation, issued from the White House, invited "all agencies and organizations interested in child welfare to unite upon that day in the observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the nation to the fundamental necessity of unremitting effort for the protection and development of the health of the nation's children."

Farmer and Wife Beaten to Death

TYLER, Tex., March 22.—(AP)—The battered bodies of George Bradberry, farmer, and his wife were found by a neighbor who stopped at their farm house east of Arp, in the East Texas oil field. Officers said the couple appeared to have been beaten to death with a hatchet.

Mrs. Bradberry held a pencil in her hand. On the cover of a magazine, lying near her, was written: "Never called me."

Speeding Kills 13 On Road in Month

Speeding by motorists resulted in 13 fatal and 481 non-fatal accidents on Pennsylvania highways during February, it was reported today by the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Driving on the left side of the road was responsible for seven fatalities out of 422 accidents during the month. A total of 124 motorists and pedestrians died as the result of accidents on the highways in February.

2 Masked Bandits Rob Missouri Bank

MARIONVILLE, Mo., March 22.—(INS.)—Two masked bandits early today robbed the bank of Marionville of $2,400. The bandits seized three men in the town made them prisoners in the bank and cut all telephone wires to prevent spread of an alarm.

Oil Plant Fire Causes Little Loss

An explosion in a crude oil still at the Atlantic Refining Company, Fifty-fifth street and the Allegheny Valley Railroad, started a small fire shortly before noon today. Two fire companies responded. The loss, officials said, was negligible.

Mancuso, N. Y. Judge, Cleared of Perjury

NEW YORK, March 22.—(AP)—Former Judge of General Sessions Francis X. Mancuso was acquitted by a Supreme Court jury this morning of a charge of perjury in connection with an inquiry into the defunct City Trust Company.

Woman Unscathed In 4-Story Leap

WILMINGTON, Del., March 22.—(AP)—"Look out, folks, I'm coming," said Peggy Henderson, 25, as she tripped merrily off the roof of a four-story building. She hit an electric wire, bounced and landed, standing up. Doctors could find only a tiny bruise on her.

She explained:

"I got that yesterday."

She was arrested for disorderly conduct. It took hours to fix the lighting system.

MOORE FREED IN VOTE CASE

Justice of the Peace J. L. Moore, of Kilbuck Township, and James Moir and Frank Spann, employes at Dixmont Hospital, were acquitted of charges of violating the election laws by directed verdict in Criminal Court today. Visiting Judge William T. Darr presided.

The jury placed the costs on Leo Riordan, the prosecutor. Costs in a dozen other similar prosecutions also have been placed on Riordan, who was an investigator for the Independents at the September primary.

Moore was accused of intimidating voters. Moir and Spann of voting on tax receipts not theirs.

Walsh Lindy Parley Bill Before Council

City Council today was to consider a resolution authorizing payment of $45.06 to Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh for expenses incurred during his visit to Trenton, N. J., where he attended a conference of police officials in an effort to effect the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby. The conference was called by Gov. Harry Moore of New Jersey. Walsh attended the meeting on orders from Mayor Charles H. Kline.

APPEAL FILED BY SULLIVAN

HARRISBURG, March 22.—(AP)—Patrick Joseph Sullivan, Pittsburgh carpenter, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-second District, Allegheny County, yesterday appealed to the Supreme Court from the order of the local court invalidating his nominating petition.

When the local court refused a motion of Earl V. Compton, Harrisburg attorney, for a supersedeas to stay its own motion ordering Sullivan's name stricken from the Republican primary ballot, Compton filed the appeal.

The proceeding attacking Sullivan's candidacy was instituted in the local court two weeks ago by counsel for Congressman P. J. Sullivan who is seeking re-election from the Thirty-second District. Counsel for the Congressman asserted that 70 of the 236 signatures on the Patrick Joseph Sullivan petition were names of persons not residents of the district.

'Two-Gun' Bandits Rob Five in Cafe

Two gunmen, each carrying two automatic pistols, stepped into the Liberty Lunch, 353 Fifth street, Rankin, early today, lined five customers against the counter, took about $20 from their pockets and escaped.

County detectives and Rankin police are investigating.

British Royal Pair To Greet U. S. Debs

LONDON, March 22.—(Universal.)—King George and Queen Mary will hold court in Buckingham Palace this year on May 11 and 12 and June 23 and 24. American debutantes will be among the hundreds to make their curtsies to the royal family.

$20,000 Awarded Boy For Loss of His Leg

A verdict of $20,000 damages for the loss by George W. Woltemar, 13, of his left leg, crushed by a street car, was awarded in the suit of his father, Wendel Woltemar, of Bellevue, against the Pittsburgh Railways Company in Common Pleas Court.

On his way home from school January 3, 1930, the boy stopped on a loading platform at Cemetery Lane, Ross Township, and slipped under the wheels of an approaching car when the platform gave way, it was testified.

Berlin Saloonists Win Lower Taxes

BERLIN, March 22.—(AP)—Berlin saloon keepers have won their fight for cheaper beer through the medium of reduced governmental taxes which will become effective the latter part of March.

The situation had developed into a "beer strike" against the tax. Some 11,000 of Berlin's 16,000 dispensaries of the beverage refused to sell beer. Scores of "bier stuben" were closed or catered only to drinkers of other beverages.

Diamond King's Son To Marry U. S. Girl

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—(AP)—Woolf Barnato, 36, British artillery captain, has filed application here for a license to marry Miss Jackie Claridge Quealy, 24, of San Francisco.

The couple met in London several years ago and the romance was continued when Capt. Barnato came to San Francisco for a visit two months ago. The ceremony will be performed here tomorrow. The groom is a son of the late Barnet I. Barnato, South African diamond king.

Judge Backs Ruling On Dorrance Estate

MEDIA, Pa., March 22.—(AP)—Judge John B. Hannum in the Delaware County Orphans' Court yesterday informed counsel for the commonwealth that he would dismiss the 86 exceptions filed by them against his recent decision holding that the $115,000,000 estate of Dr. John T. Dorrance was not taxable in Pennsylvania.

Judge Hannum ruled Dr. Dorrance, president of the Campbell Soup Company, was a resident of Cinnaminson, N. J., and not of Delaware County, where he had purchased a large estate.

40 Paris Theaters To Close Over Tax

PARIS, March 22.—(AP)—Directors of all legitimate theaters in Paris have decided to close their playhouses on March 29 in protest against what they called excessive taxation. More than 40 theaters are affected by the decision.

The effect the shutdown will have on the night life of Paris largely depends on the attitude of proprietors of music halls and movies, who have expressed sympathy with the theater owners, but have not yet taken a similar action.

EYNON BLAMES LIGHT MAKERS

Failure of automobile headlight manufacturers to continue their permits within the state were blamed for the disadvantages motorists suffer in penalties for illegal lights by Benjamin G. Eynon, state commissioner of motor vehicles, speaking last night before the Pittsburgh Chapter, Illuminating Engineering Society, in the William Penn Hotel.

That manufacturers fail to consider state requirements in their desire to create a headlight along some particular design, was pointed out as another cause for inconvenience. Eynon declared manufacturers owe it to motorists to continue their permits in the state for at least six years even though new lamp designs are registered in the meantime.

TAX COLLECTION DRIVE URGED

Recommendation that the city begin immediate action to collect hundreds of thousands of dollars in delinquent taxes was made today by Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice, who declared taxes and water rents now owed the city are more than $8,000,000.

He urged appointment of extra men in the Delinquent Tax Collector's office to act as field representatives in a collection campaign. Alderdice said:

"It should be the function of the Delinquent Tax Collector's office to press for payments, but I find that there is no outside man connected with that office whose duty it is to work entirely in the field, looking up the owners and mortgagees, and their addresses, and to make a diligent effort to collect these taxes."

Many of the delinquent lists bear names of persons "well able to pay," Alderdice said.

white teeth.. sparkling in firm gums

Don't forget the FIRM gums if you want to keep those teeth

It certainly is pleasant to show the friends and neighbors a display of white teeth—when you talk and smile and laugh.

But—if you want to keep your teeth, watch out for your gums.

Everyone has heard about pyorrhea. But people are often inclined to regard it as a distant danger—something that may happen to others but not likely to touch themselves. The infection begins at the gum line and eats its way downward to the tooth sockets. The disease may be under way for several years before it takes a single tooth, but half the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea.

Take these two precautions now against "lost teeth." First, be sure not to forget the address of your dentist. Visit him twice a year, anyway. He is a real friend in need. Second, pick out a toothpaste that does more than polish your teeth. Forhan's Toothpaste is a thoroughly good cleanser—none better. But it takes care of the gums too, and that is mighty important, because you cannot have healthy teeth in unhealthy gums. Dr. R. J. Forhan worked 26 years as a pyorrhea specialist, and his exclusive formula cannot be obtained by the public except in Forhan's Toothpaste. Get ahead of pyorrhea. Prevention is the only way. Take it seriously and you will not be sorry. Start today with Forhan's. All druggists.

What Price Dollar

Dave Harum said, "When you get hold of ten dollars, get it into you or onto you as soon as you can, for there ain't no pocket in a shroud and you're a long time dead."

If you had nothing but money you would be poor indeed!

It is the things that money can buy that make life worth living. The comforts, conveniences, little things you've always wanted. Yet never could "afford".

Right now your dollar is worth $1.50. Spend it wisely. You'll find what you want at Gimbels.

PENSIONS CUT BY PENNSY

PHILADELPHIA, March 22 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced yesterday it has been regretfully compelled to call upon its pensioned employes to share in the efforts which have been instituted over the entire railroad to decrease expenses. The company announced:

"Effective April 1 a reduction of 10 per cent will be made in all pensions, except in cases where the decrease would result in a payment of less than $50 per month.

"The reduction will bring pensions in line with the decrease of 10 per cent already effected in all wages and salaries. A second reduction of 10 per cent in all officers' salaries will become effective April 1.

"As the cost of living in the past two and one-half years has fallen much more than the decrease in pensions and wages, the actual purchasing power of both retired and active employes will continue at a level higher than that of 1929."

Junkers Airplane Works Insolvent

DESSAU, Germany, March 22 (INS).—The famous Junkers airplane works today announced its inability to meet outstanding obligations. While the company's assets are equal to liabilities, they are frozen owing to present economic conditions, and negotiations are under way for credits to enable continuance of operations.

Memphis Twins 'Laziest', Get Workhouse

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 22 (AP).—If there's any rake for lazy men, W. T. and J. G. Arwood twins take it, says Police Captain Boyles. He told a judge he hadn't any complaints against them except:

(1) When a jobless relief committee got them jobs, they wouldn't work.

(2) When neighbors got them a free house, they wouldn't move.

(3) When W. T. got a dozen gift eggs, he ate half and licked six up so his 11 children wouldn't get them.

'PEN' FUGITIVE RETURNING

Richard B. Canfield, who escaped from the Western Penitentiary nearly two years ago, is expected back in his cell tomorrow following his capture in California.

Canfield, leader of a burglar gang who preyed on mining supply stores, was identified by finger prints taken when he was committed to the Western Penitentiary for three years. Canfield escaped in July, 1930, by sliding down a rope tied to a tower.

Two other convicts, Freland Preston and Ralph Minter, who attempted to flee with Canfield, were captured when the rope broke. The two, injured, were captured immediately.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

New, Easy Way Is Painless

Yes, you can peel them right off, root and all. No soaking. No waiting two or three days for slow, old-fashioned remedies to work.

You simply wet the corn or callous with Shur-Off. Pain stops instantly. Keep it wet 2 minutes. Now you can start taking it off without the slightest trace of pain. Thousands are ending corns this new, easy way—you can do the same by following the simple directions in every package.

Why suffer with corns when Shur-Off is so inexpensive? Why go another day without relief? All druggists.

TWO VICTIMS OF AUTOS DIE

Injuries suffered when they were struck by automobiles were fatal to a man and a woman last night.

John Geisler, 45, of 1014 Uvilla street, a special patrolman at the LaBelle works of the Crucible Steel Company, Rowsdale street, died in Presbyterian Hospital from injuries suffered several hours earlier, when he was struck by an automobile near the plant. A. E. McDivitt, 27, of 240 Irwin avenue, Bellevue, alleged driver of the car, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office today.

Mrs. Rose Reckinger, 60, of 2600 Mission street, died in St. Joseph's Hospital from injuries suffered last November 14, when she was struck by an automobile driven, according to the Coroner's report, by Charles E. Koch, of 3340 Benson avenue, Brentwood. Koch also was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office.

Dies in Hospital, Autopsy Ordered

An autopsy ordered by Coroner W. J. McGregor on the body of Adolph Rottgar, 53, 2617 Sarah street, who died today in South Side Hospital, revealed several skull fractures. Rottgar, according to a police report, was found near his home Sunday with cuts and bruises on his head.

ELOPING ACTOR SUED FOR BALM

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP).—Suit for $250,000, charging breach of promise, was filed yesterday by Julie Carter, 19-year-old actress, against Leslie C. Fenton, film actor who last week eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Ann Dvorak, also of the screen.

The complaint said Fenton and Miss Carter became engaged last October, that he betrayed her under promise of marriage and "created an impression that they were married."

On February 8, Miss Carter said, he told her he loved another girl and would see her no more. She declared he had promised her a honeymoon in Europe this summer.

The complaint recited that Fenton, by repeated promises of marriage, induced her to live with him for several months in a Hollywood apartment house, that he bought her clothes and an automobile, established a bank account for her last October 8, and on November 26 gave her an engagement ring.

2 High School Boys Held in Auto Theft

Two Jeannette High School students were held today for the alleged theft March 13 of a machine belonging to George Rhodes, of the Keystone Building. The boys, Wilson Schrock, 17, and Paul Benzel, 16, were arrested in their classes yesterday, detectives reported.

ZIEGFELD FOLLIES Prints

Introduced in Misses' Frocks

$16.50

By way of divertisement, Florenz Ziegfeld turns from "glorifying" the American girl and judging feminine beauty, to the creating of individual designs in printed silks. And who could be better qualified to know what enhances feminine charm, or who has had greater opportunity for being an "inspired" creator?

The first of these prints will be introduced to Pittsburgh, tomorrow, in the Misses' Shop, by the two models pictured. Their gracious qualities and original designs set them apart from ordinary prints; and they will be seen in Pittsburgh only at Horne's.

The model with deep, draped girdle, is in etched design of navy-and-gold on oyster white.

By FAY KING

One afternoon not long ago, many of us turned on our radios to hear for the first time the voice of Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

From the first word to the last there was not one waver of nervousness. She spoke in a low, smooth, trained college-kind of voice. But in it there was a trace of sweetness and emphasis, as if one of her pleasures may be reading poems aloud, as well as writing them.

Little did we dream then what days of heartache were so soon to be in store for that brave little mother.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh is a remarkable young woman. One never ceases to admire the way she has adjusted her life to that of her famous flying husband.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Spread of Undulant Fever Brings New Health Problem

Recently I have received many inquiries regarding undulant fever. Several of the letters referred to the disease as Malta fever. Malta fever and undulant fever are the same.

Dr. Copeland

Originally the disease was believed to be caused only by contact with infected goats or by drinking contaminated goat's milk. It was a rare disease in this country but commonly seen abroad especially in the Mediterranean countries. Within the last few years undulant fever has increased greatly in the United States. This has created a new public health problem and has led to the discovery that the disease can be transmitted to man by the consumption of milk from diseased animals.

Since the disease is transmitted by contaminated milk it is important that all milk be carefully examined for the undulant fever germs. This infection can best be prevented by proper sterilization of milk and by hygienic care and inspection of the animals.

The boiling or pasteurizing of milk at a temperature of 142 degrees to 145 degrees Fahrenheit is sufficient to destroy the germs causing undulant fever. If you cannot obtain pasteurized milk you can obtain this protection by slowly boiling the milk.

Milk containers should be clean, covered and protected from flies and dust. It is best to keep milk in a cool and shady spot preferably packed with ice or in an ice chest.

As yet no specific vaccine for undulant fever has been perfected, but research work is being conducted along these lines. It is hoped that a vaccine will soon be discovered which will aid in combating this disease.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. H. M. Q.—Very often during the night I am troubled with cramps in my ankles and the leaders of the lower limbs. What is the cause and cure?

A.—This condition is usually due to undue exertion although it may also be due to a circulatory disturbance. Massage and application of heat will often give relief. See your doctor for further advice.

Household Hints

If you wish to restring a necklace use a violin string—this will last much longer than ordinary thread or twine.

Wash parsley in cold water, then put it in a small basin with enough boiling water to cover. Let it stand for 10 minutes, when you will find it chops quite easily.

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

What do you think? You'll never guess. There's talk going 'round to the effect that when hair starts to get gray you should eat spinach, eggs and liver, which are supposed to supply the blood streams with chemicals that go to form coloring substance. Might try this diet. It is good grub and won't do anybody any harm.

Everybody knows that good circulation makes the fight-for-beauty an easier job. Circulation is dependent upon deep breathing. The larger the lung capacity, the more forceful and thorough is the work of the blood streams, which not only carry groceries to all the cells of the body, but which pick up tissue garbage and cart it away.

Among astringents, white of egg stands high. It induces large pores to close up shop and behave. It is also a good treatment for oily skin. Beat the egg white slightly, add a teaspoonful of cold water, spread over the face. In five or ten minutes lave away with tepid water, then go in for a vigorous ironing with an ice cube.

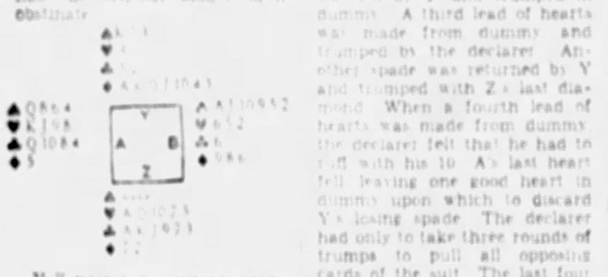
Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Finding the Right Contract

Under almost any reasonable system of bidding two experts will find the final contract provided they are enabled to exchange sufficient information. The following interesting hand might have suffered severely had the original bidder been obstinate.



Y-Z were not using an opening 2-Club bid as a demand that partner respond. Z was not strong enough to force his partner to bid. His opening bid of 2-Clubs was only a semi-demand declaration. A passed, well satisfied to let Z have the contract. Y bid 3-Diamonds as a slam invitation. He had seven practically certain tricks and his partner had stated that he could win at least seven tricks provided clubs were to be trumps. B wedged in a bid of 3-Spades. Z shifted into 4-Hearts. A bid 4-Spades. Y bid 5-Diamonds, intending to score 150 points for honors provided his partner could stand a diamond make. After Y's display of great confidence, Z showed no spade losers by bidding 5-Spades, leaving it to his partner to decide whether a small slam or a grand slam should be the final contract. Now certain that Z had strength in both clubs and hearts, Y ended contracting with 7-Diamonds.

The hands did not permit spreading the cards. They had to be played. B could not afford to take down his ace of spades when Z had announced his hand void of the suit. Because Z had shown hearts secondarily, it appeared to B that might be his best lead and he led the top card of his three hearts. The ace won the trick in dummy and Y trumped a return lead of a low heart. A spade was led by Y and trumped in dummy. A third lead of hearts was made from dummy and trumped by the declarer. Another spade was returned by Y and trumped with Z's last diamond. When a fourth lead of hearts was made from dummy, the declarer felt that he had to ruff with his 10. A's last heart fell, leaving one good heart in dummy upon which to discard Y's losing spade. The declarer had only to take three rounds of trumps to pull all opposing cards of the suit. The last four tricks were won by dummy's two top clubs, its good heart and Y's last trump. Y won the stand slam without difficulty, but would another lead have defeated the contract? That question was raised after the score had been made.

Instead of an opening lead of a heart which insured fulfillment of the contract, B might have led either his top spade, his singleton club or a diamond. Laying down B's ace of spades would have made it easier for Y to fulfill his contract because Z could then have trumped two spade leads, leaving Y's K established and not requiring the declarer to establish one heart upon which he could discard a spade. A lead of B's lone club would not have altered Y's chances to make his grand slam. He still could ruff two spades and discard his third spade upon an established heart in dummy. But an opening lead of a trump would have defeated the contract because dummy could ruff only one spade and no way exists of discarding two spades upon establishable cards in Z's hand.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Walking Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a boy and girl are walking together on the street should the girl take the boy's arm, or should the boy take the girl's arm, or should they walk independently?

2. When they are crossing the street should the boy take the girl's arm?

JENNIE.

1. They should walk independently.

2. The boy places his hand under the girl's elbow, to help her in crossing the street or to help her in getting on a car, and so forth.

At a Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have never gone to dances until recently, and I would like to know the proper reply for a girl to make to her partner when, after the dance, the young man says "Thank you" or words to that effect. Isn't a reply necessary?

MARIE.

Yes, the girl says something to indicate that she too has enjoyed the dance. It was most delightful, Tom," or "I enjoyed that dance so much, Mr. Hall."

SCHOOL PAY CUT IN WILKINSBURG

A 10 per cent pay cut for Wilkinsburg school teachers was arranged last night at a meeting of the borough school board to meet the Wilkinsburg Taxpayers' Association demand for a 3-mill tax cut. The new wage scale will be effective in September.

The salary reduction was necessary to effect the 3-mill tax cut since the board's economies in school management made possible only a 2-mill school tax reduction.

Teachers drawing between $1,800 and $2,000 will be reduced by the former figure, and all others will be reduced 10 per cent. It was pointed out that the reduction was an emergency measure and would be discarded with the return of prosperity.

The reduction was recommended by H. B. McMurray. Declaring that he had received complaints from business men that the reduction would take more money out of circulation, J. D. Ferguson, a board member, did not vote.

Teachers Would Void Donation of Wages

A petition asking that a former agreement to donate a month's wages to the school board be withdrawn was presented by Homestead school teachers at a meeting of the board last night.

The petition was refused. It was pointed out that a $90,000 deficit already exists.

OFFICIAL URGES CLEANUP WORK IN PLANTS

Cites Legion Employment Campaign as Occasion to Meet Sanitation Laws

Employers and manufacturers neglecting sanitary conditions in their plants because of failure to employ enough workmen were threatened today with prosecution by the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry through Anthony Hayward, Pittsburgh District Inspector of Bureau supervisor.

The American Legion campaign about to be opened to place men and women in positions gives employers an opportunity to assist in eliminating unemployment, Huckestein pointed out. It also affords opportunity to maintain conditions according to law and help the needy, he said.

Citing how some employers are permitting poor ventilation, unsanitary conditions, careless storage of supplies, lack of washrooms, Huckestein warned:

"There is no desire on the part of the Labor Department to persecute or oppress employers in these trying times. On the other hand the department does not intend to allow conditions improved through years of patient endeavor by socially minded employers and workers to be undermined by fly-by-night and other unscrupulous manufacturers. With the present unemployment situation there can be no justification for working hours in excess of the present number allowed by law in Pennsylvania. Employers in sub-standard establishments who continue to evade and willfully disregard the law will be prosecuted.

"The present Legion campaign offers employers a splendid opportunity to get their establishments in ship-shape order. One large plant in the state gave employment in a 'clean-up program' to its own out-of-work employes. The employer who does his plant cleaning and repairing now does himself a good turn and helps the man who is unemployed."

Third Lower Deck Opens Parkway Traffic Saturday

HELEN ON WAY TO RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, March 22.—(INS.)—Speculation was rife today over the future relations between King Carol of Rumania and his divorced wife, Princess Helen.

The princess is returning to Bucharest tomorrow from Florence, Italy. King Carol placed a special car at her disposal which will meet her at the Rumanian frontier but will not be present to greet her when she reaches Bucharest.

While unconfirmed reports that a reconciliation had been effected continued, it was generally believed that Helen was returning to Bucharest merely to visit her son, Crown Prince Michael.

HOME MYSTERY KILLER SOUGHT

With only a meager description, county detectives today continued search for the killer of Paul Mouffe, 40, shot down in the doorway of his home in Sturgeon early yesterday.

Mouffe was shot in the abdomen as his wife, Alice, leaped on from her bed. She said the stealthy man knocked on the door and when her husband opened it the gunman demanded money, and then fired. County detectives doubted the robbery theory after learning that the killer had failed to take a roll of bills on a refrigerator. Mouffe was said by detectives to have conducted a speakeasy.

Brooklyn Kidnap Clue Proves Myth

EMERYVILLE, Cal., March 22.—(AP.)—Hopes of solving a five-year-old Brooklyn (N. Y.) kidnaping case faded here today when police announced comparison of descriptions had proved a supposed clue groundless. The kidnap victim sought was William J. Gaffney, whose disappearance in Brooklyn at the age of four remains a mystery.

Police said descriptions of him revealed Harlan Over, 19, son of Mrs. Grace Over, was not the missing boy.

Two Suspects Held In Cosmetic Theft

Louis Cullen, 54, of 6[illegible] Prospect street, stock man in the warehouse of the Dow Drug Company, 723 Liberty avenue, admitted in Central Police Court, today, stealing cosmetics valued at $300 and trading them for liquor to Joseph Mawad, 52, of 1222 Bedford avenue. Cullen was held for court on a larceny charge and Mawad on a charge of receiving stolen goods by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

NEEDLESS Alarm

WHERE WAS DAD? With the children clamoring for dinner, Mrs. Adams was worried.

Usually, no one was more prompt than he. And tonight they were going to the movies. He couldn't have forgotten. Haunting fears gripped Mrs. Adams. Was he hurt? Ill? Dead?

Dinner, that night, was a silent, uneasy meal. The children went to bed crying. Through the lonely evening, Mrs. Adams also waited in tears.

Then, at nine-thirty, Mr. Adams came home. "Didn't you know?" he exclaimed. "I telephoned the Browns to tell you I had to work late!"

"But they didn't!" cried Mrs. Adams. "This proves we must have a telephone of our own!"

As an everyday convenience the telephone is worth many times its low cost. In emergencies it is priceless.

Store Owner Held In Arson Charge

HARRIS RELIEF BROADCAST :-: Beatrice Lillie in Radio Interview :-: STORY OF GARNER

Tuesday, March 22

Senator Harris

The story of John N. Garner Speaker of the House and prominently mentioned for the Democratic presidential nomination is told by Frazier Hunt news correspondent and author over KDKA at 9:30 tonight.

Hunt who is giving a series of talks on "Great Personalities" tells the story of Garner as that of a Texas boy who by sheer force of character and integrity rose from humble surroundings to the second highest political office in the land.

* * *

Miss Sylvia Rubinstein noted violinist and member of the famous Rubinstein family of pianists, will give a brief recital on WCAE tomorrow at 2:30. Miss Rubinstein who spent yesterday over WJAS is appearing this week at McCreery's during the time she remains in this city she has recently returned from Paris.

Fan Fare

Countess Felicia Gizycka interviewed by Margaret Sanger on WJAS at 8 is the daughter of Eleanor Patterson editor of the Washington Herald. Another of the Countess' sisters is Princess Antoinette Bibesco, well known author. Nora Bayes was one of the guests at the dinner of the Chicago Lambs at the Stevens hotel in honor of the detachment of a train caused Graham McNamee to be late for a broadcast for the first time in 10 years. He was going to Philadelphia for Rudy Vallee's program last Thursday night. Ray Perkins answers all his own fan mail even though he is sometimes a month behind the postman. . . . Luckily only one of 100 correspondents asks "What is Clarence's last name?" Clarence is Ray's pet lamb and gets his own flock of fan mail.

Countess Gizycka

Frank Andrini the "Wizard of the strings" heard many months on WCAE is back in town happily surprised by the new studios. Frank is going over in a big way on the stage. He plays mandolin guitar, violin and banjo, switching from one instrument to another without the loss of a note. His wife lives in Mt. Washington.

C. A. Wakeman Uncle Kay-Dee of KDKA is directing "Aladdin," which reports the Children's Playhouse series at the Nixon April 2 at 10:30.

Jane Froman went to a school of journalism so she could be a reporter but forgot all about it when she joined the staff of WLW.

Program Pointers

BEATRICE LILLIE and Hope Williams stars of George Bernard Shaw's newest play "Too True to Be Good" at the Nixon this week come before the microphone at 7:45 p. m. KQV's Backstage Interviews program. Other notables to be heard include Hugh Sinclair, Ernest Cossart, Leo G. Carroll, Pedro de Cordoba, Frank Shannon, Minna Phillips, Alexander Clark, Jr. and Julius Evans. In still another program of interest to Pittsburgh playgoers Lillian Roth sings the songs she has popularized on WJAS at 8:45 as Ed Sullivan's guest.

Miss Lillie

Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit sing "Hello I've Been Looking for You" from the Hippodrome show of 1916 on WCAE at 6.

Norman Brokenshire is interviewed by Bob Taplinger on WJAS at 5:15. "Broke" is again heard at 10:30 on the same station with Alex Gray in the "Music That Satisfies".

The Galbraith Sisters heard on WJAS each Monday night at 6:45 will broadcast hereafter on Tuesday at 6:30 beginning tonight.

Walter Winchell commutes on his Magic Carpet again tonight for music by Vincent Lopez and his orchestra in New York, and by Charlie Agnew's Orchestra from Chicago over WCAE at 10.

A new program a musical melange consisting of piano-accordian banjo piano and vocal selections with Mario, Harry and Art going commercial, is inaugurated on WWSW at 6:30.

Rita Cavaliery, popular Pittsburgh soprano, is featured on the new Acidinaires program on KDKA at 10:45, with an orchestra conducted by Zoel Parenteau. She sings the "Indian Love Call."

Seibel Discusses Theater on WCAE

George Seibel dramatic and literary critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph gives an authoritative discussion of Plays and Players over WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Madelon whose wealth of ideas on how to brighten up the home or how to bring out one's personality would amaze you is on the air over WCAE today at 10:30 a. m.

The comics always are funnier when you read them with Uncle Bob and Betty. They present a 15-minute broadcast over WCAE tonight at 6.

Louis I. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News is first with the news. He gives the latest news flashes over WCAE at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 7:30 p. m. and 9:50 p. m.

Paul Gammon tenor and Ann Zimet blues singer are featured with Herb McGee on the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air over WCAE at 11 tonight.

Sweeten Your Easter

You can get the cutest little Candy Eggs at MacDonald's. They are just about the size of a hen's egg . . . and they even have a yolk just like a real egg. They are made in a variety of colors and flavors. Last year these eggs were priced at $1.00 a dozen but now they are only 85c a dozen. The children will love them.

MacDonald's make their own Fruit and Nut Eggs. They are rich and creamy. Of course, a name is put on free.

Fruit and Nut Eggs are 60c a pound. And of course there are many other Easter novelties for the children as the grown-ups. These are priced to suit your taste and pocketbook.

EASTER SPECIAL!

"Her Nerves are Ragged . . . She Can't Face Another Day of Work"

"I can't go through another day . . . oh, what is the matter? What shall I do"? Did you ever feel this way yourself?

Nearly Nervous Prostration

DO you know her . . . this poor woman who wakes up as tired as she went to bed?

Her head is still aching . . . her nerves are ragged . . . she's on the verge of tears as she faces another day of work.

"I can't go through it again . . . I can't. Oh, what is the matter? What shall I do?" she cries.

How many young women are fast approaching a nervous breakdown because they let suffering due to female weakness rob them of their strength and health.

In offices or in their homes, they drive themselves, working "on their nerve." Hoping against hope that tomorrow they will feel better . . . but instead they become more and more prostrated.

It is a double tragedy because it is so unnecessary.

Nature did not mean women to suffer so cruelly. If they would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It has befriended women against their "peculiar" troubles for over 50 years.

It brings soothing, comforting relief . . . gently corrects through its strengthening tonic action the cause of the headaches and backaches that wear you out. Drives away the awful lassitude that kills ambition and makes life a burden.

This simple, safe remedy has justly earned its place in the Family Medicine Cabinet.

Won't you listen to the testimony of thousands of women who use it?

SINO-JAPANESE WAR EXPLAINED

Military Party Making Desperate Attempt to Get Back Power, 20th Century Club Told

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

While he advised against an official embargo because of the drastic effect it would have on Japan, Grover Clark, speaking to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning, said, if American women would refuse to buy Japanese goods it would have a tremendous moral effect on the japanese nation. He advocated, too, the withdrawal of all ambassadors, especially if this might be done simultaneously by all nations, each one sending a gunboat to convey the departing diplomats.

Sketches History

The explanation of the China-Japanese situation he said is that the Japanese military party is making a last desperate attempt to get back into power and once and for all convince the Japanese that it has not disgraced the country. Sentiment has been increasingly anti-military and pro-civilian he said and the best thing that can be done is what the western nations are doing making Japan feel that she is an outlaw nation.

The present situation seemed an inevitable event as a challenge of the old to the new way of dealing with international relations he said.

Mr. Clark who is a Japan[illegible]-born American, sketched the historical background of the two nations showing how conditions and events have led up to the situation of today. He pointed out that western civilization forced itself into the Far East and that to this day force is used to obtain certain special privileges from the East.

Japan learned from the West that one thing and one thing only counts—the force of arms. Japan has been able in the last 75 years to reconstruct herself without chaos and confusion and it was obvious when she began to develop a powerful army and navy that she would have to develop her industries in order to support the army and navy. Furthermore her industries could not be developed without the iron and coal and oil of which she had not sufficient amounts within her own boundaries.

With the Chinese, it was pointed out, territorial expansion has always been done through friendly relations and by leaving force and politics at home.

The nominating committee of the Congress of Clubs elected at the quarterly meeting yesterday consists of Mrs. C. B. McFall, Mrs. Charles S. Miller, Mrs. W. C. Whitesell, Mrs. Robert Watson, Mrs. W. J. Reed, Mrs. J. C. Eckel, Mrs. Philip Benz, Mrs. W. J. Lauer, Mrs. F. A. Mercer and Mrs. J. A. Crawshaw. The committee is headed by Mrs. H. T. Fraenheim, appointed by the board.

Speeches at the luncheon were Attorney Ella Garrett [illegible] talked in the morning on "The Legal Status of the Married Woman in Pennsylvania," and in the afternoon the Rev. Lily Bryan Andrews, former assistant rector at Trinity Cathedral, who is now teaching and lecturing. He spoke on "The Five Laws of Self-Adjustment." These he named as the laws of order, sequence, opposition, relation and cyclicity, having coined the last word himself. Eda Stoffer Kiel [illegible] sang with Olive McClain at the piano.

A number of the season's debutantes will serve as ushers at the Women's City Club morning matinee Saturday at the Nixon Theater. Among those will be Nancy Jane Longenecker, Carolyn M[illegible], Margaret Mann, Lucille Todd, Betty Kennedy, Lucretia Billings and Rita J. Borntrager.

Dates to Enter

The play will be "The Secret Garden" and will be the closing one in the club's series for this season.

As a surprise feature of the spring musicale given yesterday by the Literary and Musical Club in the Woman's City Club, the tea table held a large, decorated birthday cake in honor of Mrs. Will Earhart's birthday anniversary. Mrs. Earhart, together with Alice Schoenfeldt, Mrs. Arthur B. Switter, Estelle Healy Close, Elizabeth Stephens Cross and Anne George, furnished the vocal part of the lengthy program. It also included piano numbers by Gertrude Robinson Dodds, Mrs. H. P. McKown, Marjorie Bell Pyfer, violin solos by Ruth Bowers Gibson, Mrs. Ben G. Graham and Marie Kleyle, and cello selections by Carl White. The accompanists were Grace Blenko Martin, Mrs. Dodds and Mrs. J. R. MacGregor.

The Tourists appointed their nominating committee yesterday, choosing Mrs. C. G. Snyder as chairman. Henrietta K. Hibbard was reappointed chairman of music. For programs there were two interesting talks and music, the latter by Mrs. Edwin West, contralto, with Mrs. Kathleen Herron as accompanist.

Miss Catherine Staver, speaking on investments for women, advised life insurance, bonds and common stock as the best investments. With "The Psychology of Nursing" as her topic, Mrs. [illegible] showed the history of nursing from the time of [illegible] to the present day, [illegible] government and many modern hospitals have become affiliated with the Biblical Good Samaritan to-day nearly all the better hospitals have established student nurses may take degrees giving them junior standing, she said.

ORIGINAL SHOULDER TREATMENT DISTINGUISHES EVENING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 22.—Slim shoulders bear a large burden of the originality and success of the new frocks, whether they be day or evening models. For general wear, epaulet and capelets mark the shoulder, and when it comes to the evening [illegible] almost miraculous to discover how much can be done with a shoulder strap or a twist of a filmsy scarf. The newest dresses disdain similar shoulder treatments. No more the dress content with two narrow shoulder straps or flowers. But instead smart treatments that are original and different, but always [illegible] in keeping a new and [illegible] with the evening [illegible] which means that women are the world [illegible] beautiful and decorative.

PASSION PLAY Syria Mosque

A new Passion Play, sponsored by co-operating church groups including Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Union, Baptist Young People's Union, Epworth League, Luther League and Young People's Christian Union, was presented in Syria Mosque last night. There was a devout audience and surely the play had many excellent features.

Mr. Lissfelt

The Syria Mosque stage lends itself well to this type of pageant drama, so that the scenes, alternating on upper and lower stage, can be changed rapidly enough to accommodate the time of the action. In this respect the production copies well the ideas at Oberammergau. Indeed the text itself follows that production rather faithfully with the omission, however, of the tableaux of Old Testament stories finding fulfilment in the New Testament.

The stage direction has many commendable features, and in every case the grouping of figures is well planned. The simpler costumes are best and lend themselves admirably to the ensemble pictures. Lighting can be improved in the scene after Gethsemane; certainly that tragic procession should not occur in full sunlight after the arrest. The priests might be forced to walk all the way to Golgotha as well instead of waiting before the rising curtain which discloses the crucifixion. This latter scene has an extremely clever tempo and is marred only by the dropping of the nails upon the wooden floor.

The "Christus" of Josef Maier pictorially better than in Oberammergau. His diction is clear, he has the prophet's demeanor, but he gives the impression of fatigue rather than of mysticism. Norman Potter's "Judas" had several high spots of convincing acting. The "Pilate" of Paul Dietz was right as a portrait but he shouted far too vigorously for such a patrician. Mary Jane Paul's "Mary" was a sympathetic creation. The high priests occasionally divulged local pronunciations that made their speeches slightly amateurish.

The choral music, which was so good never to intrude upon the drama, was sung by the Allegheny County Christian Endeavor Chorus and George Van Why played organ interludes from all the masters of sacred music. An altogether creditable performance with many reminders of the famed German production.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

BANDITS BEAT, ROB AUTOIST

Police throughout Beaver Valley today were searching for four bandits who forced an automobile driven by Walter Terry, of 78 Sixteenth street, Ambridge, off the Aliquippa boulevard near the Aliquippa-Ambridge Bridge, and then beat him and robbed him of $197 last night.

As Terry was driving to his home, the bandits, riding in another car, deliberately crashed into Terry's automobile, forcing it from the highway. The thugs then leaped from their machine and ran to Terry. One, pointing a revolver, asked Terry for his money. Terry seized the revolver and as he did, the three other bandits attacked and knocked him to the ground. After taking the cash the robbers sped away in their automobile.

Prevent spread of germs . . . prevent self-infection—use KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

WHEN any member of the family has a cold, his handkerchief is a menace to everyone in the house!

It teems with germs. Spreads disease germs through the air every time it's used. Pollutes laundry bags and clothing.

Self-infects user

The old-time handkerchief spreads contagion. It carries germs back to the face, making recovery slower and more difficult.

Avoid this danger, as thousands of other progressive people are doing! Use Kleenex! Insist that the whole family use Kleenex! Each tissue need be used but once. Then you can destroy it, germs and all.

More comfortable, too

Kleenex is infinitely more comfortable than any handkerchief during a cold. It is softer than either cotton or linen, and much more absorbent. Kleenex costs less than having handkerchiefs laundered! Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store.

VICTORY FORECAST AT ORGANIZATION RALLY

POLITICS

Martin Gubernatorial Boom Apparent

By MARK SHIELDS

At yesterday's rally for the organization slate for state offices it might have appeared that the principal intent was to demonstrate a "regular" fealty to the ticket, comprising James J. Davis for U. S. Senate, Frank Baldwin for Auditor General, Charles A. Waters for State Treasurer, and make your own choice for Justices of the Superior Court, so long as one of the three was Arthur James, former Lieutenant Governor and darling of the Vare forces, as well as a substantial element of organized politics in this end of the state.

Mr. Shields

But to those who looked beneath the surface, who sought analysis of the crowd which even an independent would admit was large, it was apparent that the home folks were touching off a gubernatorial boom for State Chairman Edward Martin. The gubernatorial primary is more than two years in the future, but make no mistake that already politically-minded gentlemen are at work on the subject.

From Washington and Greene counties, both of which claim Martin as their own, there were more than three-score representatives at the reception and the luncheon which followed. They are regulars. Should the fortunes of war favor some one other than Martin as the organization gubernatorial entry in 1934, they would go along against an independent, but their first choice is Martin. Yesterday's gesture is only the first of a series they intend to make in an endeavor to impress the remainder of the state with the esteem in which they hold him.

Note carefully, that it is not herein stated that this esteem is universal in their communities, or that it is of sufficient strength to pyramid the state chairman into a gubernatorial prominence. But if failure comes it will be because Ed Carothers, Chauncey Parkinson, W. J. Kyle and Frank Dunbar, to mention only a few, did not do their best.

* * *

Reception Evidences Organization Solidarity

There can be no denying that yesterday's reception evidenced an organization solidarity, even a coalition in Allegheny County in which the wounds of the last county primary have been buried, at least for the duration of the present state campaign. Further than that no one would care to forecast.

The only absentee among the notables who could have been present, was Senator Frank J. Harris. The Senator has a habit of independence, though that does not mean he is under all conditions a Pinchot follower. But he pretty much does his own thinking, and in this campaign I have a hunch he will be for Ralph Flinn for Auditor General, though he may be for Davis for the Senate, as he was in 1930.

Joe Mackrell, Jimmy Coyne, Jim Malone, E. V. Babcock, Bob Cain, they were all there at some time during the day, evidently to pledge allegiance to the ticket so far as Davis and Baldwin are concerned. All, however, have reservations on the Superior Court judgeship, and there is notable a growing sympathy for Judge Joseph Stadtfeld at the expense of Judge William M. Parker of Venango County.

Philadelphia has declared for Parker, but there is nothing in that committment which prevents the Allegheny countians being for Stadtfeld and the remainder of the ticket. Indeed, Gen. Martin, when announcing the state slate, specifically reserved to Allegheny County the right to be for Stadtfeld and still be considered regular.

There were some entertaining speeches at the luncheon which following the reception. Dry county after dry county predicted a Davis sweep. In some cases these predictions were founded as much on enthusiasm and hopes disappointed through Gov. Pinchot's refusal to recognize patriots as on fact. But it did show that the organization, seeing the error of its divided ways in 1930, is trying to get together. I doubt if it will remain so cohesive for two years more.

* * *

Gesture to Show Mayor Kline Force in Politics

Another diverting spectacle was the manner in which the candidates met our Mayor, Charles H. Kline. The Mayor had no time for the reception and the luncheon. He simply couldn't get there.

So the candidates, after they had shaken hundreds of hands and downed sustaining food, trooped over to the city hall and were given an audience. I should like to know who stage-managed that piece of business. It was a gesture which attempted to show that the Mayor is a force in politics, however he may stand indicted by the District Attorney's office on the allegation that he wrongfully conducted his administration.

Some might have attached significance to the absence of County Commissioner William D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr, particularly as Mansfield also is Republican county chairman. Actually there was little reason for comment. Barr has never had any association with the factors represented yesterday, and Mansfield made a fight for the inclusion of Stadtfeld and an Allegheny Countian as Auditor General.

When he was out-jockeyed in that adventure there was nothing for him to do but be for Stadtfeld, as are many other organization men, and for Flinn. It is a safe bet that Davis was not worried about the absence of Mansfield.

Next on the program will be an Independent rally, with all their candidates on deck.

CROWD GREETS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES

Davis, Baldwin, Waters And James Feted; Party Unity Seen by Coleman

One of the greatest turnouts in the political history of Allegheny County greeted candidates of the state Republican organization at a reception yesterday in campaign headquarters, William Penn Hotel, State Senator James J. Coyne, Western Pennsylvania field marshal for the state and Philadelphia organization, and W. H. Coleman, Allegheny County campaign chairman, were hosts.

Candidates included United States Senator James J. Davis, seeking a full term; Auditor General Charles A. Waters, running for State Treasurer; State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General, and Arthur H. James, slated for one of the three judgeships on the Supreme Court bench.

Other guests at the speakers' table were Gen. Edward Martin, State Treasurer and Republican state chairman; Lieut. Gov. E. G. Shannon, County Treasurer Robert S. Cain, City Controller James P. Kerr and Attorney O. K. Eaton.

WOMEN PRESENT

The feminine contingent was represented by Mrs. Laura J. Hinnau, vice chairman of the Republican county committee, and these candidates for the state committee, Mrs. Anna Boggs, Mrs. Helen Douglas and Mrs. Lida Byerly.

The city and county governments were represented by Councilmen John S. Herron, C. B. Connelley, W. Y. English, M. J. Muldowney, W. J. Soost and Harry A. Little, Safety Director James M. Clark and Health Director C. B. Maits, County Controller R. G. Woodside, Prothonotary John Vogt and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. Recorder S. D. Foster and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley were out of the city.

MARTIN HONORED

Edward Carouthers, Republican chairman of Washington County, headed a delegation of 40 residents of that county in honor of State Chairman Martin.

Allegheny County Campaign Chairman Coleman said:

"The recent upheaval in Allegheny County was a tribute to County Commissioner C. C. McGovern. That defeat was good for the regular Republican organization for out of it comes a united Republican party that will support this ticket."

Senator Coyne said:

"I will do everything in my power to help Mr. Coleman build up a great majority in Allegheny County."

PREDICT VICTORY

State Senator Chauncey Parkinson, of Greene County, predicted that the state ticket would win by a 3-to-1 ratio. Ben Clark, of Indiana County, in introducing Gilbert Cornell, former leader for Gov. Pinchot, said:

"Victory is in sight for any 'regular' candidate who is against the one wearing the Pinchot collar."

Similar comments were made by Dr. R. D. Greer, of Butler County; David Craig, of Beaver County; Raymond McGraw, of Armstrong County; James Torrance, of Westmoreland County; Charles Young, of Lawrence County; D. W. Smiley and Don Kimmel, of Fayette County, and State Senator Frank Fay, of Mercer County.

Stenographer Turns Writer; $6,225 Richer

MISS PEARL SANDERS

Quits Her Position To Follow New Vocation

One Pittsburgh girl today had definitely abandoned stenography for literature—for the very good reason that when she opened a letter a few days ago a check for $5,000 unexpectedly dropped into her lap.

Miss Pearl Sanders, 2220 Fifth avenue, rushed to the bank, deposited the check and immediately planned other stories she'd write.

The check was evidence that she had won first prize in a national short-story contest.

WRITING SINCE 10

Since she was 10, Miss Sanders has been writing—even poetry, although she admits she has thrown most of the stuff away.

Born in Russia, reared in Pittsburgh, she left Moorehead School in the Hill district and was soon a stenographer for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In spare moments she wrote. Two years ago she entered a contest, won a second prize of $50.

Soon after she won another second prize of $500.

WINS FIVE PRIZES

And the results have been more than satisfactory. In two years she has won five prizes for fiction, totaling $6,225.

The title of Miss Sanders' $5,000 effort is "The Price of Silence"—and it's a love story.

And what is she going to do with the money? She answers:

2 Held in Lottery, Pupils Held Patrons

Harry Wellman and Walter Lucas, were held for court yesterday by Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan on a charge of operating a lottery following a raid by county detectives on an alleged "numbers" headquarters in Dixon street, Homestead, where school children were among the patrons, according to complaints to District Attorney Andrew T. Park. Bail for each was set at $2,500.

Relief Crisis Perils 6,500 Families

AID OF GORDON ASKED IN BANK RE-OPENING

1,000 Penna. Bank and Trust Depositors Urge End of Dispute Over 'Red Tape'

A delegation representing depositors of the closed Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company were preparing today to interview Dr. W. D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking, to hasten reorganization of the bank.

The delegation was appointed last night at a mass meeting in the Woolslayer School auditorium, Liberty avenue and Fortieth street, held under the auspices of the Arsenal Board of Trade and attended by more than 1,000 of the bank's depositors.

SPEAKERS CHEERED

Speakers were cheered as they demanded a reorganization of the institution and urged the support of the State Banking Department without controversy over technicalities.

A resolution directed to Gordon was passed and included the charge that the committee appointed by the directors for the reorganization of the bank has not produced a plan acceptable to the banking department.

One of the sponsors of the meeting, Dr. A. L. Lewin, told depositors that his efforts to effect a reorganization through Gov. Gifford Pinchot and Dr. Gordon were blocked by a measure in the banking laws providing that the department was not obliged to assist in the reorganization.

RUN EXPLAINED

How a run on the bank was aggravated by the closing of the neighboring Franklin Savings and Trust Company was told by Harry Aufderheide, cashier of the closed bank.

"Buck passing" between the bank's receiver and the State Banking Department that retarded the effort to rebuild the institution was charged by C. G. Purse, a director of the bank.

An unexpected speaker was the Rev. Father James R. Cox, and the pastor of St. Patrick's was cheered as he denounced "big bankers" and charged that they were trying to eliminate neighborhood banks.

The Rev. A. C. Curry, president of the trade body, presided.

3,000 Questionnaires Will Be Mailed; Beechview Rally Scheduled Tonight

Officers of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association today prepared for the mailing of 3,000 questionnaires to legislative candidates throughout the state as the movement against excessive public utility rates was to be explained before domestic consumers of Beechview.

The Beechview Civic League will stage its postponed rally tonight at 8 o'clock in Eden Hall, Boylan Building. The fight to force changes in utility regulations will be explained by Secretary C. V. Shoup, of the Allied Boards of Trade. A second speaker will be E. E. Harter, Jr., who will talk on civic affairs pertaining to the district.

Every candidate will be requested to set forth his attitude on public utility matters. President A. B. Davidson, of the fair rate group, announced today. The association is not seeking to support any particular ticket, he added, only desiring to bring each individual into the open.

The movement continues to occupy the interest of civic groups, with the Shaler Township Civic Association arranging to hold a public demonstration next week. The arrangements are being completed by a special committee headed by Albert E. Wagner.

Brookline Rate Cut Demand in Council

The Brookline Board of Trade today transmitted to City Council copies of resolutions demanding reductions in public utilities rates, enforcement of ordinances prohibiting defacing of poles and walls with advertisements and allegedly fake advertisements for employment.

Crying Beggar Gets 30-Day Term

Sam Soloman, 40, of Indiana Harbor, Ind., known to police as "Crying Sam" shed tears once too often while begging money downtown last night. Patrolman Michael Horan testified in Central Police Court today. He was sentenced by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg to 30 days in the workhouse in lieu of a $25 fine.

She'd Row, Row, Row, to Get Away From Scrubbing

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Now there's a gal for you. Almost fifty, slight twinges of lumbago and tired of work.

So she rows a boat two thousand miles down the Mississippi to rest up.

We'd like to do the same thing provided that both banks of the stream were lined with crooners singing "Old Man River."

You can figure her idea. After massaging floors twenty years she decided to go some place where there wasn't any floor.

She has left the old life behind without a reminder except the mop which she will keep to smack tourists in the face.

We consider this one of the heroic events of the century. And we hope she doesn't spoil it by bobbing up like Ethel Barrymore and giving all the credit to melba toast.

3 CITIES AWAIT GAS RATE RULE

HARRISBURG, March 22—(AP.)—Cities of Erie, Warren and Corry awaited today decision of the Public Service Commission on their 15-year-old fight against the Pennsylvania Gas Company rates.

Attorneys for the three towns consigned the matter to the commission yesterday after three hours of argument against the present rate of 75 cents per thousand cubic feet, which replaced the 60 cent rate in 1917.

J. U. Mullin, of Kane, and W. Pitt Gifford, of Erie, appeared for the company while S. L. Gibson, C. E. Bordwell, of Corry, and E. M. Murphy, Erie city solicitor appeared for the complainants.

Mullin sought to show that the company is earning less than 7 per cent allowed by the commission and that the company's valuation of its properties as between $24,000,000 and $26,000,000 is right.

ROBS PATRONS IN LUNCH ROOM

Police were seeking two armed men who entered the Liberty Lunch, at 353 Fifth street, Rankin, early today and after lining a number of patrons against the wall, robbed them of an undetermined amount of money and escaped. Police said the pair, one of whom carried two automatic pistols, fled in an automobile bearing Ohio license plates.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

"Phar Lap" sounds like a mouth wash, but runs like a race horse. All American horses saw of him was his tail and his dust. England, which holds a mandate over Australia, now has the auto, aeroplane, and Williams, of Canada, won the Olympics. Now this race horse makes a sucker out of us, but the good old U. S. A. still holds one international record. Our international bankers have loaned more of other peoples money to foreign countries, on less security, than was ever loaned before, even on security. Now there is a record we want to see beat, but no other bankers are dumb enough to beat it.

Rum Seizure Made In Wilmerding Raid

Ernest Barrata, of Middle avenue, Wilmerding, and James Marcino, of State street, Wilmerding, were turned over to prohibition agents by Police Chief S. M. Holden, of Wilmerding, following a raid yesterday on Barrata's home, according to the agents.

Liquor was reported confiscated in a yard in the rear of the house and in an automobile allegedly owned by Marcino.

HUNGER FEARED FOR COUNTY'S DESTITUTE

Family-Help-Family Plan To Be Pushed; City Studies Distribution of $260,000

Direct relief will be halted after next Saturday in Allegheny County outside the city unless sufficient additional funds to continue the work are made available in the meantime, according to a letter which has been sent by the Allegheny County Emergency Association to the County Board of Poor Directors and County Commissioners.

All employes in the county work program, sponsored by the Association, will be transferred to the county payroll under the $500,000 fund made available by the Commissioners, John D. Beatty, director of work of the association, announced today.

In the city, the $260,000 emergency appropriation passed by Council will enable relief to be carried on for about four weeks, Emergency Association leaders said.

All relief cases in the county outside the city would ordinarily look to the Poor Board for help, the letter states. The relief leaders offer to appoint a committee to work out the best possible plan to meet the emergency which confronts the Poor Board."

POOR BOARD 'BROKE'

The Poor Board on January 11 declared its funds were exhausted. It has given no relief since that time with the exception of coal. Many who had been receiving relief from the Poor Board appealed to the Emergency Association and were helped.

Maj. J. Clyde Miller, Poor Director, today said the Poor Board would co-operate with the Emergency Association in any way possible, but that funds were limited. He said:

"We do not have the money for direct relief and tax funds will not be coming in before July. It is difficult to borrow against taxes because of uncertain collections. Our chief hope for relief funds is in the Talbot bill."

The Emergency Association, according to its letter to the Poor Board, has extended help in the last week to 6,636 families in the county outside of Pittsburgh and paid to them $41,387. Regret is expressed that the Emergency Association will be unable to continue because of exhaustion of funds.

HUNGER FEAR LOOMS

The letter states:

Ex-Teacher Lauds New Tire Color Scheme

Make friends, give service and maintain a quality reputation instead of cutting prices, is the formula for business success of Miss Ora Enterline, of Big Run, Pa., the only woman tire dealer among the 500 who attended a conference in the William Penn Hotel yesterday.

A graduate of Wilson College, Miss Enterline gave up teaching to sell tires two years ago and likes it, she said. Womanlike, she was especially interested in the new colored tires.

Speaking at the conference from a coast-to-coast survey, Philip J. Kelly, assistant general sales manager of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, said:

"With product quality higher than ever before and commodity prices lower than in recent years, the buying public is receiving real value for its money. Product innovation is the stimulation for hard hit industries."

The conference was opened by W. G. Manley, manager of the Pittsburgh branch.

FORMER CZAR'S ART TREASURE ON DISPLAY

By PENELOPE REDD

The tales of the Hammer family, who garnered the Imperial Russian treasures in U. S. S. R. now on view at Kaufmann's galleries, are reminiscent of Marco Polo's incredible narrations.

Victor Hammer related today in Kaufmann's auditorium the series of events in the topsy-turvy land of early Soviet Russia that culminated in the present American showing of the former Czar Nicholas II's personal possessions. Mr. Hammer will repeat his lecture at the same place at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, March 24.

Miss Redd

Dr. Armand Hammer was the first member of the family to go to Russia. He seized an opportunity to join a party of German medical and scientific men who entered Russia in 1921. Realizing the hopelessness of curing the ills of a starving nation by pills, he negotiated a trade agreement with Lenin to obtain a million bushels of wheat for the people.

ENTERED TRADE

This led to Dr. Hammer's accepting informally the responsibilities of American manufacturers who wanted representation in Russia. Tractors, typewriters, plows and other commodities were included. The Soviet government granted Dr. Hammer a concession to manufacture pencils and thus was the nucleus of Russian trade re-established.

Meanwhile Dr. Hammer's brother, Victor, had arrived. In his pursuit of furnishings for their quarters he discovered that the porcelains, silver and other objects formerly owned by royalty were filtering through circuitously to the Russian equivalent of the "Thieves Market."

Victor Hammer thus devised a way to reduce the burden of their rapidly growing fortune in rubles which they were obliged to accept. The ruble was without value outside of Russia. Thus, he commenced to collect the decorative arts of the old regime.

TREASURES WATCHED

There were involved sessions with official committees who registered all of the items and constantly invaded his home to be certain the treasures had not been exported.

When the trading activities of the Hammer family were curtailed by reason of the organization in 1926, and the subsequent expansion of the Soviet government's own "Amtorg" trading corporation, they decided to liquidate their business affairs.

Then the Hammers faced the fact that their interned fortune in objects of art would be difficult to remove from Russia. Ultimately in 1930 they succeeded in their efforts. The collection was released on the payment of 60 per cent duty based on a revaluation of everything.

So is that icons, textiles, porcelains and other decorative arts enhanced by dramatic association-interest will be redistributed among the historic-minded of the new world. This exhibition will be on view through March 26.

STYLES MODELED IN FASHION SHOW

DRESS FOR UTILITY WEAR

A dress that can be worn with a jacket for dinner, floppy hat for afternoon, without jacket for evening. It's of cionnet lace, blue silk velvet.

NEW IN EVENING GOWNS

A beaded sea-blue chiffon over satin—with separate skirt and loose-hanging bolero worn under the satin. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

TWEED FOR SPORTS

The association will continue efforts to obtain other funds for the relief of distress in the county and will throw its energies into the family-help-family campaign of Senator Frank J. Harris, but it is helpless until funds can be raised, the Poor Directors were informed.

How to distribute the $260,000 city appropriation will be the subject of a conference to be arranged today by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the City Welfare Department, with Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller James P. Kerr.

The association's work program comes to an end tomorrow. By tomorrow night 6,000 employes will have been dismissed. The only ones retained are a few which have been doing work for the social agencies.

Taylor Allderdice, former president of the National Tube Company, has accepted leadership of the "advance guard" in the Harris family-help-family campaign. His workers meet Thursday night to plan their drive to obtain subscriptions from large corporations and wealthy individuals.

Few Attend Rites For Ivar Kreuger

STOCKHOLM, March 22.—(AP)—Only a handful of relatives and personal friends attended the funeral services today for Ivar Kreuger, head of the great Swedish Match Trust, who committed suicide last week.

One of the saddest in the attending group was Miss Boekman, his secretary, who probably knew more of the financier's business secrets than any one else in the world.

SPRING STYLES DISPLAYED BY N. Y. MODELS

Nearly 700 of Pittsburgh's best-dressed women attended one of the most elaborate private showings of new fashions to be displayed in Pittsburgh this spring. Three New York models gave them a cross-section of the silhouettes, colors and materials which will influence their choice of costume for the Easter parade here. The showing was at Grabowsky's in Wood street.

Navy to high blues predominated in the show. Brown and white came next and beige trimmed black was popular. The street silhouette showed the militaristic influence of the Washington bicentennial on miladi's sport and walking costumes. The evening silhouettes are extremely feminine, with a stronger Empire influence than ever. Soft neck lines, with trimmings above the waist line were characteristic of evening and afternoon wear. Street neck lines are severe and tailored, with relieving bright scarfs of silk and flat fur.

Short gloves for evening, and three-quarter gloves for day-time are correct. Ruby jewelry is in vogue, symbolic of the color brightness of all accessories this year. Belts are disappearing, to be replaced with tucking treatment at the waist. Brimmed hats, with flower, animal and ornament trimming is supplanting the pancake turban.

Girl, 2 Men Held In Car, Truck Crash

Bertha Meyers, 22, of 1129 Troy Hill road, was injured slightly early today when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a P. H. Butler Company truck at Penn avenue and Stanwix street.

She and her companion, John Harpless, of 2462 Colorado street, were lodged in Central Station on reckless driving charges, as was Edward Hintmeyer, reputed driver of the truck.

4 Families Routed By Derry Fire

LATROBE, Pa., March 22.—Occupants of four apartments in the Wyman apartments, East Second street, Derry, were routed in night clothing early today when fire swept the three-story building causing damage estimated at more than $2,000. Those routed were John Dibert, the family of Joseph Wyman, owner of the building; Miss Tillie Clark, the family of Cribbs and the family of Fred

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

AN OPEN DOOR TO A CAREER..

PENN SCHOOL prepares YOU for any branch of AVIATION

Many schools may give you an introduction to Aviation knowledge, but only the specialized school can make you a specialist in your chosen department of Aviation. PENN SCHOOL OF AVIATION is a highly specialized organization that has graduated many specialists into all branches of Aviation.

PENN SCHOOL is FIRST in financial resources, being operated by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation . . . a company with ample capital actively engaged in every branch of the great Aviation industry. It was FIRST in Pennsylvania to receive a license from the U. S. Government and from the State as a training school for Transport Pilots. It still is FIRST among Pennsylvania's air schools because it is the ONLY school in the state fully approved by the Federal and State Governments for the training of Transport Pilots.

Close association with the needs of Aviation makes it possible for the air-minded officials of PENN SCHOOL to point the way of opportunity to all Penn students. You can make the opportunity yours if you wish. Select your branch of Aviation and phone, call or write for an interview.

NEW LOW COSTS . . . SPECIAL TERMS ARRANGED

Pilot's Courses Learn to fly where flying is done! Penn School Flying Courses lead to Private, Limited Commercial and Transport Pilot's certificates. The school operates where commercial flying is done . . . at Pittsburgh-Butler Airport, Curtiss-Reynolds Airport and Harrisburg Airport. It has complete approval of the U. S. Department of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission. Every Penn School course is a safe and a sure one. Over 500 Penn School students have passed the U. S. Department of Commerce Pilot's Flying Tests without a single failure to date! If you want to fly for pleasure or profit, talk with a Penn School official now! Costs are surprisingly low and easy payments can be arranged. At the existing prices every Penn School course is a profitable investment for future success in the great, growing Aviation Industry.

Ground School Penn School furnishes expert guidance to students who desire to enter any of the Mechanical Departments of Aviation. Because of its association with companies operating in every field of the industry and its close touch with local Aviation schooling facilities, Penn School can place the ambitious student in the exact department of training where his particular ability will be most productive of success. Phone, write or call at our office for complete details about technical classes now forming.

Master Pilot's Course Probably the most thorough, practical and complete Aviation Course offered anywhere in the Penn School curriculum leading to a Master Aviator's Degree. . . Beginning with the very fundamentals of Aviation, the student enrolled in this course progresses through Ground School, Aviation Mechanics, Transport Pilot's Flying Course, practical general experience in the Aviation Industry, and in Aviation Management to a guaranteed salaried position in Aviation. The value of the contacts made by graduates of this course with successful experts in every branch of Aviation and the advanced knowledge and skill gained from them are simply incalculable. From among such thoroughly air-trained young men and women as these will come the big-salaried Pilots, Engineers, Inventors and Aviation Executives of the near future. A high school diploma or its equivalent is necessary for enrollment in this course. Make an appointment with a Penn School official who will gladly explain the requirements and the results of this remarkable Aviation Course.

Enroll Now! The best time of the year to enter upon any Aviation Course is right now! . . . Classes are in full swing. Phone, write or call at our office for an appointment with a Penn School official who will be glad to advise and direct you to any Course of Aviation that you select.

ON THE STAGE :-: Week of Bright Lights For Shaw's Comedy :-: IN HOLLYWOOD

What Makes The Stars Weep

HOLLYWOOD, March 22.

His name is Dominic McBride, he owns 7,000 phonograph records and he knows just which one to play to make Greta Garbo cry or to help Joan Crawford get into the mood for a love scene.

Greta Garbo

Ever since he can remember McBride has been a "nut" on records. Today, at 26, he is manager of the record department of a Los Angeles music store. But for three years before that he worked on the sets at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, playing music for the various stars.

He knows, for instance, that when Greta Garbo is to play a tense scene she will be inspired by listening to the Peer Gynt suites, "Tristan and Isolde" or to Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun." Or, if it is to be a crying scene, she likes the Swedish folk-song "O Vermland." Or Grieg's "Heart Wounds" and "The Last Spring." Or if it's a love scene her choice is Richard Strauss' "Rosenkavalier Waltz." Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song," Richard Wagner's "Albumblatt" or most recently, "Vienna, City of My Dreams." This, during the filming of "Grand Hotel."

Joan Crawford, on the other hand, likes to cry after listening to Bing Crosby, and before love scenes she chooses "Estralita," or melodies from "La Boheme" and "Madame Butterfly."

Ramon Novarro is an accomplished musician and has a wide choice. For dramatic scenes however, he usually calls for symphonies. Bill Haines doesn't care very much what is played. And Anita Page likes "St. Louis Blues" and "Manhattan Serenade" for almost any mood.

The most appreciative star he ever played for, says McBride, was Peggy Wood, who made a brief appearance in the films a year or so ago.

AND SO TO GOSSIP

Yesterday I was yawning too much to write about the premiere of "The Wet Parade" and the subsequent opening of the new "Frolics" Supper Club in Culver City. I should have left at 2 a. m. when Eddie Robinson did. But I thought I could take it. And besides, I wanted to outstay that crowd at the next table—Bert Wheeler, Dorothy Lee, Marshall Duffield, Robert Woolsey, Harry Joe Brown, etc. Bert, being single again, says he can't find any place that stays open late enough! This one did. What a lot of people! Marilynn Miller and Don Alvarado, Madge Evans and Tom Gallery, Seena Owen, Jimmy Durante, Roscoe Ates, Leo Carrillo. A whole table-full of Marine officers. And B. B. B., the restaurant man, taking random bows all evening. Swell music by Ted Fiorito's Orchestra, smart floor—show headed by Bobbe Arnst and Fuzzy Knight. Pretty, fast-stepping chorus . . . James Cagney got the biggest hand of the evening . . . And can you imagine that waiter trying to lift a table over Jobyna Howland's head on the dance floor? . . . Oh, yes, the premiere. Saw Billie Bakewell and Polly Ann Young, Genevieve Tobin with Edgar Allan Wolf, and Dorothy Jordan with Donald Dilloway. Death Valley Scotty. A photographer came right into the theater and took a flash of Paul Bern sitting with Estelle Taylor. House was packed.

ONE SATISFIED AUTHOR

Dorothy Lee

"My books never reach the screen," he told me. "This one did because it is the first one that didn't have any Socialism in it. I suppose that may be a hint of how I could get more. But I'd rather say what I want to in the way I want to."

Shaw's 'Too True to Be Good' Shakes a Shillelagh At Every Ism

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It isn't a drama, for there is too much talk; it isn't a sermon, for it is too interesting; it isn't a jest, for it is too terribly serious; it isn't a political speech, for there is no candidate nor platform. What then is this new Shavian work, which he calls "Too True To Be Good" and which had the large audience at the Nixon laughing last night and may have them thinking tomorrow?

Mr. Seibel

In the Old Testament there was a gentleman by the name of Jeremiah, who grumbled about everything in the most eloquent English with the trade-mark of King James. In the England of Queen Victoria there was a gentleman by the name of W. S. Gilbert, who made merry with all the things his compatriots had called holy. Well, if these two gentlemen came to life and decided to do some up-to-date prophesying in the form of musical comedy, it would be something very much like "Too True To Be Good." It needs only the tunes of Sir Arthur Sullivan to rank it with "The Pirates of Penzance" or "The Mikado."

The direct ancestor of Private Meek is Pooh-Bah, and Colonel Tallboys is descended from Sir Joseph, and nearly every other character is Gilbertian. What Shaw hasn't annexed from the Savoy, he has taken over from himself. There are shreds of "Arms and the Man," of "Blanco Posnet," of "The Doctor's Dilemma," of "Man and Superman" and even of "St. Joan"—all in the accents of Jeremiah and with the irresponsibility of the "Bab Ballads."

YOU HAVE TO KNOW

Just as you have to know a lot about Darwin to enjoy Kingsley's "Water Babies," so you have to know a lot about history, philosophy, anthropology and other things to enjoy this Shaw play completely. If you have not read the sermons and essays of the gloomy Dean Inge, you cannot appreciate fully the tirades of the atheistic elder played by Pedro de Cordoba with magnificent fervor in a cave labeled "St. Paul's." If you have not waded through the "outlines" of everything perpetrated by the Wellses and the Huxleys, you cannot appreciate the sermons of the burglar, who is also a preacher, and also the son of the atheist as played with glorious insouciance by Hugh Sinclair.

Shaw expects a lot from busy people. But we have all been educated by the war—and are being given a post-graduate course by the depression. We have been so well educated by these major disasters that some of his most magnificent jests are too true to be funny. Our pockets have been picked, our heads have been bashed, bloody—and Jeremiah Shaw expects us to laugh at it.

A LILLIE AND A HOPE

But in this desert blooms a Lillie and in this despair there shines a Hope. Of course the Lillie is Beatrice and the Hope is Williams. These two ladies are most diverting from the moment one of them enters as nurse to look after the other one as patient. When they roll upon the rugs in a wrestling match which Gilbert Shaw has taken from his own "Apple Cart," the audience is convulsed. When Hope Williams as the patient is persuaded to steal her own necklace, and to have herself kidnaped in order to spend her own ransom, it begins to look like a wild night in the Nixon.

But then we land on a desert island—which belongs to Britain like all unannexed dry spots in any ocean—and there is nothing to do but talk about biology, religion and the mad folly of war. It is talk—but such talk! If you want a lesson in English as only the Irish can speak it, you must go to see "Too True To Be Good." Even Dean Inge writes no such English as this Jeremiah Shaw!

Frank Shannon as a plous sergeant, Ernest Cossart as a stupid colonel, and Leo G. Carroll as a private who is an army in himself, furnish the satire on militarism, which is the most considerable ingredient of the show. Julius Evans as a Microbe pats across a good deal of the fun poked at orthodox medicine. But everybody is all the time throwing brickbats or blowing paper wads at something.

It is a grand holiday for Shaw's shillelagh—a new Donnybrook Fair where few heads escape being cracked. And with a marvelously smooth cast of fine actors, and a regular art-nouveau production, it is gorgeous entertainment for people who like to have tin cans tied to the tails of their last illusions.

Empress' Life In German Cinema

By MILDRED FILLMORE

History in the grand manner is shown on the screen at the German Cinema this week—the life of that unhappy empress, "Elizabeth of Austria," with Lil Dagover as the heroine.

There is just enough romance and humor to make the history seem human. Old Francis Joseph, the emperor, is a sorry stick of a man, who marries the Bavarian princess but cannot tame her with court etiquet.

Pomp and pride of the Viennese court are contrasted with the kindly gossip of old wives in the vegetable market and the flustered homage of the cheap eating-house proprietor who suddenly has an empress as his guest because she wants to taste her favorite Bavarian dish.

Tragedy always lurks around the corner. When the crown prince is being forced to marry a Belgian princess he does not love, he commits suicide with the woman of his heart. And at last the empress, most human and democratic of imperial ladies, is killed by the stiletto of an anarchist.

Most of the scenes have been filmed in the very spots the scenario calls for—in Vienna and the beautiful Bavarian Alps. Probability has not been stretched too much, so one may say here is history as it was enacted. And it is a sad commentary upon the glories of empire.

Carnegie Tech Students In Children's Play

Five students of the Carnegie Tech drama school have been added to the cast of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which the Children's Theater of Pittsburgh will present in the Pitt Saturday afternoon, April 9. They are Dorothy Devlin, Eloise Campbell, Helen Keefe, Mary Dingfelder and Pattie Littell. Helen Sisenwain, Tech drama undergraduate, will play the title role. Other prominent parts are played by Stephanie Diamond, Lydia Patterson, Alfred Smith and Arthur Dimling.

Spanish Gypsy Dancer Here April 2

Escudero, the Spanish gypsy dancer, who is coming to the Nixon for one performance on Saturday, April 2, was born of gypsy parents while they were traveling on the open road through Spain. When he was 9 he joined a troupe of traveling gypsies, and danced at fiestas and in public squares. Escudero came to America for the first time this season, and crowded houses have applauded him in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington. His program of 26 diversified numbers will be given to the airs of Spanish folklore music by De Falla, Albeniz and Granados.

"Happy Days," with Harry "Hello Jake" Fields, burlesque's outstanding comedian, and Eddie Kaplan, eccentric comedian, sharing honors, is the current attraction in the Academy. The show is in two acts and 32 scenes. Included in the many episodes are a "Holland" scene and a sketch, "World's Famous Vampires." The entire cast of 20 principals and 30 members of the ensemble and illuminated runway girls take part in these two scenes. Edith Warren, soprano; Ann Norton, blues singer and dancer, and Marie La Belle, straight dancer, are new members of the company. Johnny Gilmore and Eddie Innes also new principals, share honors with Fields and Kaplan in the funmaking. Vaudeville acts include a quartet.

Vick Plan cuts Costs of Colds!

THE family's "Colds-Tax" can be reduced. It is being reduced this winter—in every community in the country—with the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." Developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub, the Plan is made possible with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea for preventing colds, this new Vick formula is companion to VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds. Each aids and supplements the other in the Vick Plan, which follows:

1. BEFORE A COLD STARTS—

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Drops promptly as directed. If you catch cold easily, use a few Vicks Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that you know is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes, wet or cold—after over smoking—dry, overheated rooms—indoor crowds—etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages.

2. AFTER A COLD STARTS—

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.) This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing."

TRIAL OFFER BY LOCAL DRUGGISTS

You have Vicks VapoRub—now get Vicks Nose Drops and use together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to reduce their number and severity. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

The Breaking Point

IT WAS Mr. Fred Kaplan, the genial counselor-at-law, who unfolded the tale the other night. I listened to the yarn with a great deal of interest, but Mr. Kaplan employed so many legal terms that I grew slightly dizzy. Accordingly, I may go haywire on a few of the technical points as I relay the story to you. If I do, excuse it, please.

It seems that—not so very long ago—a sanity hearing took place in one of the New York courthouses. A man who had been confined in an insane asylum for several years was now endeavoring to prove that he was being held on a false premise. Through his attorneys, a writ had been obtained and he was out to prove that the sanity experts were all wrong when they said he was still daffy.

The moment Mr. X took the stand it was apparent that this was going to be no easy case. The man had a definite sense of balance and he conducted himself in a most courteous and affable manner.

"Your honor," he said, "I suppose that this type of thing is by no means new to you. But I wish you would disregard all other cases of a similar nature in considering this one. Because it cannot be quite the same.

"I fully expect the examiner to fling any number of idiotic questions at me. And I can assure you that they will seem just as silly to me as they will to you. But I am fighting for a freedom that I honestly deserve, and I trust you will bear with me if I sometimes hesitate a short time before replying."

The judge blinked. This man was talking far more sensibly than half the attorneys who appeared before him day after day. Surely this did not sound as if an insane man were talking. However—

"Don't worry, Mr. X," said the judge. "The entire court will bear with you."

So the questions began. They were many and varied. Questions that involved numbers and dates and events. Mr. X answered them flawlessly.

Suddenly, the examiner asked the strangest of questions.

"And how do you feel today, Christopher Columbus?" he asked rapidly.

Mr. X laughed and turned to the judge.

"That, your honor," he asserted smilingly, "is what I meant when I said that they would fling idiotic questions at me. They are going to endeavor to prove that I labor under the delusion that I am Christopher Columbus.

"I, of course, do not blame them. That is the examiner's job, and I am only too willing to play ball. But, with your honor's permission, I would like to state that the sanity commission is wasting time along those lines. I trust I am not too bold."

The examiner swallowed hard.

"Are you going to tell the court, Mr. X," he cried, "that you never believed you were Christopher Columbus? Are you going to deny what we have in black and white on the records?"

Mr. X shook his head.

"I cannot tell you anything you do not know," he replied, "and I readily admit that I must have been slightly demented when I was first incarcerated. I raise no cry and make no statements about the fact that I was originally placed in the asylum.

"What I am trying to show is that—today—I am as sane as any man in this room. I thank God that the years have healed my mind. And I want nothing more than an even break from the sanity commission to prove my case."

The judge leaned forward.

"What do you mean, Mr. X," he inquired, "by an even break? Certainly you don't think the sanity commission has anything against you personally?"

"No, sir," returned Mr. X immediately. "However, there is one point I would like to bring out. Sanity commissions must sometimes be wrong. Otherwise, why would there be a law permitting me to obtain a hearing such as this? You understand, I am sure."

The judge rubbed his face thoughtfully. Here was a man, supposedly insane, who was offering such logical arguments as he had not heard in some time. He glanced at the clock, called it a day and called the examiner before him.

"I want to tell you something, Mr. Jordan," he said. "This man has almost convinced me of his sanity. If there is no difference in the hearing tomorrow, I will have no choice but to release him."

The examiner drummed this bench.

"I think he will crack," he returned confidently. "It has been my experience that this type of man can steel himself for just so long. During that time, he can convince anyone of his sanity. Then, suddenly, he goes. You'll find him a different man tomorrow."

"I'm not so sure," murmured the judge . . . .

His Honor was quite correct. The second day was an absolute repetition of the first. The same type of question—and the same sensible replies. But the examiner would not give up. Every once in so often he would toss in the same question.

"Are you positive," he would cry, "that you are not Christopher Columbus?"

The examiner evidently did it just once too often. Because the judge brought down his gavel with a bang.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have had enough of this. There is no use hounding the man until he breaks under the strain. I have been listening to this for the better part of two days and I am convinced that there is no reason to continue.

"I cannot judge by what happened in the asylum or by this man's actions in the past. I know only the things I observed in this courtroom. Accordingly, I have no choice in the matter. It is my opinion that Mr. X is sane and that he should no longer be confined in an asylum."

The examiner began to gather his papers. His work was over. Mr. X walked from the witness stand and stood before the judge.

"Your honor," he stated humbly, "you have made me the happiest man in the world. You have been absolutely fair and unbiased. Everything I have in life and everything I might achieve in life from now on, I owe completely to you.

"You have the undying gratitude of a human being who has suffered a very great deal."

The justice smiled.

"That's all right, my man," he said. "I am glad for your sake that it turned out as it has."

The clerk handed up some papers. The judge nodded.

"Oh, yes," he continued, "these are your release papers. Just as a matter of form and for the asylum records, will you please sign right here?"

Mr. X accepted a pen and the papers. And in a steady and confident manner, he signed the name—"Christopher Columbus!"

PLAYS AND PLAYERS -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Willie Howard, featured comedian of George White's "Scandals," coming next Monday to the Alvin, began his professional career as a boy soprano who sang from a box in "The Little Duchess," and lost his job very quickly when his voice changed over night almost. Then he began giving imitations and earned his daily bread by impersonating such comedians as Joe Welch and Sam Bernard. The production he is with now is his fourth "Scandals." There will be four matinees of Mr. White's show in the Alvin, one every day beginning with Wednesday.

SCHOOLS BATTLE FOR TITLE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

LOCAL SCHOOLS JOIN FIGHT ON TAX

LOCAL COLLEGES ARE joining in a nation-wide drive begun by the major schools of the United States to have collegiate sports made exempt from the provisions of the revenue bill in Congress levying a 10 per cent tax on all amusement tickets costing from 25 cents upward. The previous amusement tax law did not apply to college athletics, which were held to be part of the educational system and not conducted for financial gain, the profit made on one or two sports being used to carry on others that are annually operated at a loss.

R. L. Sackett

But the new federal tax measure makes no exceptions, placing a straight levy of 10 per cent on all sport and amusement tickets where the admission price is 25 cents or more. A campaign of determined opposition to the inclusion of college sports in the list of amusements affected has been opened by the colleges and universities of the country through the National Collegiate Association, and each school holding membership in that body is individually lodging objections with Senators and Representatives in Congress.

A REQUEST THAT such action be taken has been received by each college indirectly from Prof. Kennedy, of Princeton, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. This body is divided into districts throughout the country, and President Kennedy sent a letter to the head of each district, urging him to pass the word along to each college member in his territory.

The head of this district is R. L. Sackett, dean of engineering at Penn State. He has written, among the other members, to W. Don Harrison, of Pitt; Clarence Overend, of Carnegie Tech, and John D. Holohan, of Duquesne, urging them to lend their assistance toward having college sports made exempt from the proposed tax. All three of the local athletic chiefs said today they would at once lay a plea before United States Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis, and also the Representatives in the House from city districts.

"AUTHORS OF THIS proposal," the letter received by the local college athletic heads reads, "are apparently ignorant of the fact that college athletics are not operated for profit, but to provide opportunity for undergraduate sport, and that in the majority of institutions athletics are operated at a loss.

"Football and basketball receipts chiefly are aimed at in the proposal to tax admissions without excepting colleges and universities, as was done in the wartime amusement tax. These receipts are part of the physical education budget supporting various programs for the physical betterment of youth. Such movements should be supported rather than retarded."

IN THE GIANT practice so far, 20-year-old Francis Healey has promised to fulfill John McGraw's prediction that he would become one of the best young catchers in the majors. The only question is his hitting. He has pounded the ball in satisfactory style in the early games against the Cubs, but it remains to be seen what he will do when the opposing pitchers reach top form. Healey is much more peppery and talkative behind the plate than when he was first tried, and as for speed, the Giants declare there isn't a catcher in either league to match him. McGraw draws attention to Healey's fleetness in batting practice. He hits high flies behind second or short and Francis, from the catcher's position, dashes out and gets the ball on the run.*

Fred Leach

IT MAY SEEM pretty late for an outfielder to learn anything new about his trade when he has passed the age of 34, but Bill McKechnie is confident that Fred Leach will be a better fly chaser for the Braves than he was for the Phillies or Giants after the Boston outfield coach, Duffy Lewis, has had him for a while.

McKechnie says outsiders have no idea how well the old Red Sox gardener knows his stuff, or how quickly he can impart it to others. Bill gives Lewis credit for having worked wonders with Wes Schulmerich last year and also with Rob Worthington, and looks for even such a veteran as Leach to improve quite a bit under the same tutor.

JUST WHERE THE heavyweight championship battle between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey will be staged, on or about June 16, continues to be a question, following the discovery that the Madison Square Garden Corporation has not leased the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds in New York for summer fights.

It develops that the two New York baseball clubs in control of the parks have pooled their interests and demanded a guarantee of $75,000 in rent, the privilege of 10 per cent from all heavyweight bouts and 12½ per cent from shows featuring lighter boxers.

ANOTHER FACTOR IN the hitch is the fact that the ball clubs insist on renting the grounds for wrestling purposes to the grappling promoters direct, instead of giving the Garden people the wrestling rights, which would enable the corporation to cut in on the mat carnivals planned by Jack Curley. The latter has long had up his sleeve a meeting at Jim Londos and Strangler Lewis, which he figures may draw as much as any boxing show next summer. So far the Garden has refused to accept the terms laid down by the ball clubs, threatening to take the Schmeling-Sharkey fight to Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, if necessary, or even outside New York State. It's a badly muddled situation, but insiders are still of the opinion the Yankee Stadium will get the show in the end.*

NUMEROUS CASES OF grip necessitates a last-minute cancellation of the annual basketball game between a picked team from this district and the Rockview Penitentiary five. However, the contest has been rescheduled for a later date.

Cup Jenkins, Homestead police official, is keeping his all-star team together and will play the game at Rockview early in April. Penn State varsity gave the penitentiary quintet its only defeat, 29 to 24.

HARD SURFACES FOR tennis courts undoubtedly have their disadvantages, but there is no gainsaying one point distinctly in their favor. They extend the net season in this climate several weeks at each end.

Announcement that the Duquesne University racquet squad will open its campaign here with Pitt on April 23 brings to mind anew the fact that the Dukes, by virtue of having at their disposal two asphalt rectangles, are annually able to work in at least a fortnight, and sometimes a month, more of tennis than are their district rivals.

Frank Casey

GRANTED THAT THE wear and tear on equipment will be found consistently greater on hard courts than on clay or grass, it would seem that in schools, where the net season is brief at best, the installation of the all-weather type of court would be worth while. This contention has been proved pretty conclusively by the Dukes since Brother Ammon measured off the Bluffites' asphalt playing area atop the then new Bluff gymnasium back in the spring of 1924. It's because they don't have to wait for the weather to break that Frank Casey and his mates will be able to open their season as early as four weeks from next Saturday, while colleges that lacked Duquesne's foresight in the matter of court construction must defer their home activities until ground conditions are right.*

OAKLAND, Cal., March 22.—The Pirates' training schedule has been severely hampered for the past few days by a sudden drop in the temperature, which has made it quite difficult for Manager Gibson to get in his daily drills.

Two more games will be played in this section, with the Bucs facing Oakland here today and tomorrow in the final games of their series.

WEATHER CHILLY

The weather in the Frisco district since the Pirates arrived a week ago has been rather chilly, with a stiff wind that at times bordered on a gale, to help along with the frigid weather.

The Bucco skipper has been sending his squad through a drill each day, but he has tempered the work somewhat, so as not to endanger the condition of the players. The squad for the most part has been working out under wraps, taking them off only when it is absolutely necessary.

The regulars in the lineup were allowed a day of respite as far as a baseball game was concerned yesterday. Some of them being left behind in San Francisco while Gibson took his second string outfit to Woodland and played the Mission club. The game was a real slugfest, the Pirates coming out on top, 14 to 10.

GIANTS THURSDAY

Gibby is more than anxious of turning the tables on the big league opposition, and will use every available means at his command to gain the objective.

Mass. Fight Body Bars Gorilla Jones

BOSTON, March 22.—The license of Gorilla Jones, Akron (O.) middleweight, to fight in Massachusetts has been suspended indefinitely by the State Boxing Commission.

International Ice Playoff Dates Set

BUFFALO, March 22.—(AP.)—The board of governors of the International Hockey League have announced the following schedule of playoffs:

March 29, London at Buffalo, Windsor at Detroit; March 31, Detroit at London, Buffalo at Windsor; April 2, Windsor at Buffalo; April 3, London at Detroit; April 5, Detroit at Windsor, Buffalo at London; April 7, Detroit at Buffalo, Windsor at London; April 9, London at Windsor; April 10, Buffalo at Detroit.

The proposal of having a consolation series among the other three clubs—Pittsburgh, Syracuse and Cleveland—was spiked from the first. Pittsburgh was the only club desiring such a series.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: JOHN MARSHALL HELD TWO FEDERAL OFFICES AT THE SAME TIME—John Marshall (1755-1835) served as Secretary of State under President Adams from June 6, 1800, to March 4, 1801. While he still was Secretary of State, he was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, succeeding Chief Justice Ellsworth, and commissioned January 31, 1801. He presided in the Court at its February term, beginning February 4, 1801, and thus was simultaneously United States Secretary of State and Chief Justice for a period of 21 days. Chief Justice Marshall, who was the oldest of 15 children and never had the benefit of a college education, ranks with the greatest jurists of the world's history. For 35 years he headed the supreme judicial tribunal of the United States and his decisions are referred to as the standard authority on constitutional questions.

Two evenly matched quintets, New Kensington, champion of Section I, and Braddock, champion of Section VIII, battle tonight in the final round of the twentieth annual basketball elimination series of the W. P. I. A. L. in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Braddock, coached by James (Ham) Hudson, former Geneva College star, will be striving for its first league championship, while New Kensington, coached by Carl Glock, will be out to obtain its second basketball crown, having won the diadem two years ago.

SCORING ACES MEET

The contest brings together two of the greatest scoring stars in the history of the tournament in Louis Marino, brilliant forward of New Kensington, and Elmer (Pickles) Kreiling, of Braddock, leading scorer in Section VIII during the regular season and one of the outstanding heroes of the current eliminations.

The two youngsters have stood out prominently in the early contests of the tournament and if they continue to play in the same manner that characterized their showings in the first three games, scholastic followers are in for a real treat.

Both boys are dead shots from virtually every angle of the floor, and will have to be watched continually if they are to be kept from scoring freely.

VICTOR IN DOUBT

Picking a probable winner tonight is a hazardous task, as the tournament, drawing to a close, has been one upset after another as the favorites fell by the wayside.

Homestead, pre-tourney favorite, fell in the quarter finals. New Castle, champion of Section III, and Charleroi, champion of Section V, were later victims. All three of the above mentioned schools were represented by powerful quintets, but they had the misfortune to stack up against opposition that was primed for them.

Braddock has been a contestant in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations in 10 out of the last 14 years and never has won the championship. The team reached the final round twice prior to this year, being defeated in 1916 and 1917.

REGULARS IN SHAPE

Coaches Glock and Hudson have all their regulars in shape for the contest. Glock will present Marino and Walaitis at forward, Babe Dayoub at center and Susek and Tomkins at guard.

Hudson will place his hopes for the championship on the shoulders of Kreiling and Kryzwicki at forward, Hale at center and Buckley and Gontowski at guard. The game will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Interest in the final duel is high and indications are that one of the largest crowds in years will see the championship engagement. Both teams have been well supported in the present tournament.

Braddock and New Kensington are deserving of their places in the final round. Both have shown swift, passing attacks and fine defenses throughout the series.

New Kensington defeated Beckwith Township, champion of Section XII and one of the most impressive losing teams in the tournament, 32-29. East Pike Run, champion of Section XIII, 33-18, and Charleroi, champion of Section V, 32-28.

Braddock sped through to the final round by disposing of Uniontown, champion of Section X, 31-18; New Castle, champion of Section III, 28-22, and Ford City, champion of Section VI, 26-16.

WINNER TO MEET FIFTH

The winner tonight earns the right to clash with Fifth Avenue High, representing the City League as District 8 in the P. I. A. A. playoffs next Saturday night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. This survivor of this game earns the right to engage Strong Vincent, of Erie, District 10 champion, in the western regional final.

Fifth Avenue High invaded Altoona, Saturday night to dispose of Huntingdon, District 6 champion, in the first round, 34-27.

Coaches and principals of all high schools enrolled as members of the W. P. I. A. L. will gather in Webster Hall this evening for the annual banquet held prior to the championship battle. All guests will attend the game in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

PALMERTON VICTOR

N. L. PLAYOFF DATES SET

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 22.—(AP.)—Tentative dates for the National Hockey League eliminations leading to the Stanley Cup playoffs have been announced.

If the Montreal Canadiens win first place in the Canadian Section, the best three-out-of-five series between the Canadiens and New York Rangers opens here March 24. The second game will be played here March 26, and the other three games, if necessary, at New York, March 27, 29 and 31. The home-and-home series between Toronto and Chicago will open at Chicago, March 27, and end at Toronto, March 29, and the home-and-home series between the Montreal Maroons and Detroit Falcons opens in Detroit March 24, and ends here March 29.

If Toronto wins first place, the best three-out-of-five series between Toronto and the Rangers will open at Toronto, March 25. The second game will be played in New York, March 27, and the last three games on dates and at sites yet to be announced.

The home-and-home series between the Canadiens and Chicago will open at Chicago, March 25, and end here March 29. The home-and-home series between the Maroons and Detroit will open here March 24, and end at Detroit, March 27.

DISTRICT TEAMS SCORE WELL

DETROIT, March 22.—Pittsburgh district teams, having hit into the prize money in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament through good scoring last night, today turn their attention to the doubles and singles events where more cash lies before them.

East Pittsburgh produced a winner in the Roth Confectionery, which totaled 2713, with H. Guest featuring. Shands Cut Rate Drugs of Huntington, W. Va., was there with a good figure of 2793, and incidentally set high single game of the tournament when it rose to 1077 in the second dash. In this game every man except the anchor, J. Guhl, had a good two-century.

John's Barbers was the nearest of three Erie teams to the dough, a 2706 being shot. The scores:

ERIE MERMEN AGAIN FAVORED TO TRIUMPH

By JESS CARVER

Five cracks out-of-the-district swim teams, including the defending champion Erie Strong Vincent will be on hand here Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2, seeking to stow away the honors in Pitt's eighteenth annual interscholastic swimming championships competition in which will get under way with trials in all events Friday night and be completed Saturday afternoon of next week. The meets will be held, as usual, in the pool at the Y gym.

Len Schnupp

For the past two years Erie's splashers have paddled off with the honors. In 1930 it was Erie Central, and last year Erie Strong Vincent. The defending champs, Erie Academy, McKinley High of Canton, Akron East and Butler are among the early out-of-town entries.

Three of the meet's pet records were knocked off last year when the boys shaved off marks in the back and breast stroke and free-style 100 yard events. Two Strong Vincent entries accounted for two of the marks covering the 100-yard back stroke in 1:08.8 and Higgins covering the water in the breast stroke event in 1:18. Denny of Westinghouse was good for 0:56.8 in the free style. Denny is swimming for the Pitt freshmen this year and will be out there seeking to win himself a university title or two. The Pitt championships will be decided in conjunction with the high school events.

SCHNUPP TO MARRY

There is going to be a wife in the life as it is as one family is concerned about the time the next Pitt-Tech football game rolls around. The family will be the Mister and Missus Leonard Schnupp, of course. Mister and Missus are to be wed on April 6.

Schnupp, a former star lugger of the Tech is to be married to Miss Wilma Hermine Lowe of Penn Wilpa backfield mate of Pitt in 1927, '28 and '29.

The Schnupps are going to join the back-to-the-soil movement and will reside on a farm Len has rented near Valencia. They will be at home to all their friends and former teammates of Len's save hooking halfbacks by the first of May.

The Tipoff

Although they are only one step at the first annual Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Championship tournament at Carnegie Tech last week, West Virginia, Montgomery will be the strong at the 50-night tourney and have entries at Penn State April 8 and 9.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Our Pirates are billed to jump off three weeks from today in San Diego and as the major league entries approach the starting tape there is a growing suspicion among Pittsburgh fans that Heine Meine will be listed as being among those present but with no part in the race. The sharpshooting Dutchman continues to guard the home hearth with little thought of exchanging notes with his local employers.

Twill be unfortunate for George Gibson should he be forced to face the bell without his best pitcher. The hard-working Canuck has turned in a great job of conditioning an uncertain team; he deserves the "break" of having the best the club can show in the way of pitchers and Heinie to give him his due is the most dependable hurler on the staff.

Were Meine to come to terms immediately he probably would be lost to the club during the four hot tests the Buccos must face at the beginning of the race. It goes without saying that the Redbirds will be in a fighting mood as the long grind begins, the world champions are eager to land a third straight pennant and they realize a good start is worthy of hard striving.

Gabby Street's scrappers won their 1930 struggle only after some hectic fights, their had get-away causing them to flounder in the second division for many weeks. Last year they jumped into action like champs and they were still acting like topnotchers as they brought baseball's highest honors back to the senior circuit.

So you will see the Pirates will have to be on their mettle in St. Louis when the gong sounds. Meine would be the logical starting pitcher for Pittsburgh in as much as he was the one pitcher in the National league last summer whom the flag-winners hated to see way to the slab. The St. Louis Dutchman blanked his neighbors twice, a feat not matched by any other flinger.

Larry French might appear as the choice to face the Redbirds with Meinie absent, yet there would be much concern as to Larry's safety in an opener, or almost any contest featuring the Redbirds when one considers what Street's sluggers did to a certain lefthander named Grove. Larry is a lad with plenty of nerve and confidence, but one must be possessed of a lot of things to fool the Cards, if he is a southpaw. Aside from Sunny Jim Bottomley, Street's lineup is a righthanded formation against the lefthanders.

Ervin Brame in form is a tough nut for the Cardinals to crack. Give Brame his stuff and control and he will treat the champions to an unpleasant afternoon. He pitches to their weak spots and often has the headliners talking to themselves. Glenn Spencer also is a puzzle to the St. Louis batters.

SEVEN SCHOOLS JOIN TENNIS LEAGUE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The newly formed Interscholastic Tennis Conference convened at Taylor Allderdice High School in special pre-season session last evening and added seven district secondary institutions to the 10 previously aligned with the fast-growing net body. Aspinwall, Bellevue, Ben Avon, Crafton, Homestead and Sewickley high schools are the outfits voted into membership. Further, according to C. Lawrence Walsh, director of athletics of the Pittsburgh public schools, there is prospect that the present city section of the loop will be enhanced by entry of Allegheny, South Hills, Westinghouse and Oliver high schools within the next few days.

In view of the extraordinary increase in the circuit enrollment it was necessary to split the county division into three four-school sections instead of permitting it to stand as the five-squad wheel originally planned. The lineups ultimately decided upon after prolonged consideration of geography are as follows:

COUNTY SECTION I

COUNTY SECTION II
Wilkinsburg, Turtle Creek Union, Avalon, Homestead.

COUNTY SECTION III
Ben Avon, Crafton, Bellevue, Sewickley.

CITY TO BE DIVIDED

It is probable that the City sector likewise will be divided. Determination of this point was postponed pending definite word from schools now more or less on the fence. Director Walsh however has promised quick action and the matter has been left in his hands as was also the task of compiling the City schedule.

Meanwhile Capt. William A. Palmer, Shady Side sports head and Conference secretary, has undertaken the job of drawing up the revised County card which he will release later in the week. Hostilities will get under way on Thursday, April 21 and will terminate on Monday, May 9. Home-and-home round robin competition will be in order. If there are twin-city sections the victors in these divisions will meet for the Pittsburgh title on May 16. The respective county sectional winners and the champion city team will get together in the inter-sectional semi-finals on the University of Pittsburgh courts on May 26. The final fracas for the Conference crown and the brand new Pitt Challenge Trophy will be a May 31 feature likewise on the Panther rectangles.

BY-LAWS RATIFIED

By-laws governing conference play were formally ratified at last night's conclave. The rules of match play as promulgated by the United States Lawn Tennis Association were adopted and it was agreed that team matches will consist of three singles contests and two doubles frays, the captor of a majority of these tilts grabbing the verdict and being entitled to credit with one victory in the sectional standing in contradistinction to the system in vogue in the P. T. A. Inter-Club League, in which individual tussles, rather than group results serve as units in computation of percentages and standings.

The conference will be governed by the following executive committee:

President, John R. Lowe, Taylor Allderdice; vice president, Robert Carnahan, Shady Side Academy; treasurer, H. H. Miller, Turtle Creek; secretary, Lawrence Walsh, director of athletics of Pittsburgh public schools; and Paul G. Sullivan, secretary of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association.

WILSON WINS AS SUB FOR RODGERS

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor

With two unannounced substitutions, one of them in the main bout, Motor Square Garden last night staged its poorest boxing show of the season before one of its smallest crowds.

Withholding the information that Jackie Rodgers, local Negro puncher, would not be able to go through with his bout with Baby Face Mathison of Buffalo, until it was too late for announcement to be made through the newspapers, although Rodgers declared he had informed the matchmaker last Saturday that he would be unable to appear, the club tossed Jackie Wilson, East End Negro bantamweight, into the breach after he had finished a hard workout during the afternoon for a match he had scheduled with Frankie Wallace of Cleveland at the Garden's other club, the Moose Temple on Wednesday night, and Jackie had to fincan through the last two rounds of the eight-round battle after piling up a big lead in the first six.

MOOSE SHOW CANCELED

As a result, the judges split their decision and it remained for the referee to award Wilson the laurels.

It was a slow battle for little fellows with the only excitement coming in the sixth round when Jackie tried hard to win with a knockout and failed after which he slowed down to a walk.

It was announced that Wilson would not be permitted to go through with the Wallace bout whereupon the Moose show was canceled, leaving Wallace to hold the bag after a week's training. Wilson had a big pull in the weights last night, scaling 122½ pounds against 116 for Mathison at 3 p. m.

Announcement was made late yesterday afternoon that the commission doctor had refused to pass Rodgers because he is blind in his left eye. Rodgers denied this saying he had pulled out of the match on Saturday because the eye which has been bad since he was thumbed in a bout at Hickey Park a few summers go, had become inflamed. He said he was not ordered to appear for examination until after the other boxers had weighed yesterday, after which he was rejected and ordered suspended.

"FIT TO FIGHT"—DOCTOR

The following statement was made today by Dr. Edward B. Heckel, who has been treating Rodgers for his eye condition since he was injured.

"This is to certify that Jackie Rodgers had his left eye injured on August 28, 1930, and at the present time the vision of this eye is reduced to form perception, with the hope that it will improve quite a bit. It is my opinion that his eye condition should not interfere with his boxing."

The other substitution occurred in the third bout in which it had been advertised for several days that Leon Jendrasiak of Grand Rapids and U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, who fought a great battle at the Moose last week, would meet in a return match. Jendrasiak's handlers denied the bout ever was closed. Joey Thomas of the North Side, was called in as a last-minute substitute and proved entirely too experienced for Carpentier, who took a bad beating.

The crowd vigorously booed the action of the referee in stopping the scheduled eight-round semi-final with eight seconds to go in the fifth round as Mickey Solomen of New Castle, was getting up from his second count of nine in the round. Mickey also had been floored for nine in the third round, but had come back to force the fighting thereafter up to the finish and also had an edge in the first two rounds.

GROSS BEATS CLEMENTS

Carl Gross, Braddock heavyweight, upset the dope by winning all of the way from Jack Clements of Jeannette in the second bout despite the handicap of a badly cut eye. Clements who had scored two quick knockouts in the same ring recently, claimed after the bout he had injured his right hand in the first round. An X-ray will be taken today to determine if it is broken.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22 (AP)—Seattle baseball club of the Pacific Coast league today announced the purchase of Frank Brazill, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, from the Indianapolis club of the American association. Brazill, who batted .348 in the Pacific Coast league last season, will be the fifth outfielder on the Seattle roster.

MRS. WADSWORTH LEADS

PITTSBURGH, March 22 (AP)—Mrs. Jack Fenner Wadsworth of Pittsburgh, ranked second to Mrs. Marion Jessup of Philadelphia in the women's national indoor tennis rankings, today announced that she would make a tour of the South in preparation for the outdoor season. The tour will include matches with Mrs. Jessup and other leading women players. The matches will be played today.

WEST PENN LOOP HOLDS MEETING

By TOM BIRKS

With a possibility of 10 teams on its roster, the West Penn loop held its second meeting of the season last evening at Honus Wagner's. Five of last year's outfits were on hand, the Homestead Aces, Turtle Creek Community, Marty Griffins, St. Joachims, and the Martin Club of Garfield.

Linwood, the champion, was missing and so was Reliance Life. The new clubs in attendance were Whitaker, Duquesne Republicans, North Versailles and St. Clair Frogs.

It was not definitely settled as to the number of teams to make up the league this year, but a compact circuit of eight seemed to find most favor.

LAAKS MADE PILOT

Bill Laaks, for many years a popular umpire in the district, is the new manager of the Duquesne team. He stated that the steel workers will have a real club. Johnny Popp and Dutch Ackerman represented Whitaker. Popp stating that the report that Whitaker was not going to have a team was premature.

Among those present were Jack Fertig, Paul Mach, Johnny Popp, Gerry Americus, Mike Kudrau, Dutch Winters and Jimmy Fullen.

North Versailles will play its home games at Chambers Field, while the St. Clair Frogs use Hanger Field for their tilts.

Marty Griffin's Hill district club may be without the services of Gigliotti, for this star pitcher is being sought by a couple of City League outfits.

MEETINGS CARDED

A number of meetings are scheduled for tomorrow night, at 204 Sixth avenue. The North and South loop gets together. Preceding this session, a light first-class section meeting is to be held.

On Thursday night the Monongahela League holds its second meeting. Secretary Tabory has announced that eight clubs will be on hand. Final arrangements will be made at this confab.

Nick Altrock Says:

BILOXI, Miss., March 22—Did you see where Griff said he'd pay $50,000 in hard cash for a good pitcher for his Washington club?

Nick Altrock

I guess the old boy has been whiffing his opium pipe again. If Griff parted with 50 grand in cash these days he'd want Lefty Grove, Andy Mellon and Mary Garden.

Now, I'll tell one. For 10 per cent of that wad of smackers I would go in there and pitch myself. But, no kidding, one good flinger and our club would be up there fighting for the old streamer. And finding one is just as easy as locating a phonograph needle in six tons of scrap iron.

U. S., FRANCE BREAK EVEN

NEW YORK, March 22—(AP)—The United States and France broke even last night in the opening singles engagements of the international tennis team matches. Gregory Mangin, of the home forces, licked Christian Boussus, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, only to see his work go for naught when Jean Borotra squared matters by beating Lanky Frank Shields, 6-8, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

for information leading to the arrest and conviction of this man

WHILE glancing through a police bulletin the other day we became impressed with the fact that bristles and brigandry seem to go hand in hand. Although this possibly has no significance we decided to feature it in a Gillette advertisement. The man whose photograph appears above is not a criminal but is a professional model, and naturally we don't want him arrested. Clean-shaven—he's one of the best looking men we know.

Our point, after all, is to emphasize the importance of a fresh, close shave—and to tell you about the razor blades Gillette is making today. We are proud to state—these are the sharpest blades ever produced. More than this—we firmly believe they make shaving delightfully comfortable.

It is hard for us to go further without the use of resounding superlatives—so we simply urge you to try the present Gillette blades on our money-back guarantee. Buy a package soon—today, if you will. Try a blade tomorrow morning. If it doesn't give you shaving ease and comfort you've never experienced before, return the package with the unused blades to your dealer and he'll refund the entire purchase price.

THE GILLETTE BLUE SUPER-BLADE
The $2 Kroman De Luxe blade has been withdrawn from production and replaced with the sensational Blue Super-Blade—far superior to the Kroman. You pay only a few cents more for the Blue Blade than for the regular blade and get unmatched shaving comfort. The Blue Blade is of extraordinary quality—without reservation the finest blade ever produced. Colored blue for easy identification—it is contained in a blue package, cellophane wrapped, and is made by a distinctly different process. Distribution is not yet complete—so if your dealer hasn't the Blue Blade, ask him to get it for you, which he can, quickly.

HERD THINKING BLAMED FOR INSTABILITY

Failure of Industrial Leaders to Plan Work Believed Another Factor

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

Prior to the economic disorders, the popular notion was that the road to wealth was through the accumulation of common stocks. By October 24, 1929, the same public had been converted to the notion that it would be the part of wisdom to get rid of such stocks.

Mr. Rukeyser.

Likewise, during the business boom, popular meistersingers were chanting without challenge about the superior intelligence and skill of American business management. Nowadays there is a disposition to hold that same management in low repute.

Management which in 1929 commanded a high premium in market prices of stocks is nowadays quoted at a discount, that is, to say, some companies have been quoted at less than the liquidating value of their net tangible quick assets. Obviously, both extreme appraisals of the value of management could not be correct.

I believe that the depression is the result of a failure on the part of management in the large—a failure in part resulting from iniquitous anti-trust laws which discouraged sensible co-operation. The breakdown was perhaps the inevitable consequence of lack of machinery for industrial planning and economic co-ordination.

But in attempting to adjust company operations to prevailing economic conditions, business management has not lain down. There has been evidence of a creative spirit.

The popular assumption is that there has been less of this in the railroad field than any other. Unquestionably, railroad management has been slow to catch the spirit of progress, research and innovation. That was true for decades, but in the last few years there has been increasing evidence of a changing spirit.

I asked James Keeley, vice president of the Pullman Company, how the traveling public has reacted to some of the improvements made in sleeping car service in recent months. Mr. Keeley, before making his present association, was a famous newspaper editor and publisher in Chicago. He said:

"Generally speaking, I should say that all our innovations have been highly successful—the single rooms, the double rooms, and the private sections.

"I should say the outstanding factor of Pullman business in the last year and a half has been the development of salesmanship and the turning of the majority of the 7,000 conductors into first-class salesmen."

Bituminous Coal Production Rises

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(AP)—Production of bituminous coal rose sharply during the week ended March 12 following the record low level established during the previous week. The output for comparable periods follows, as reported by the Bureau of Mines:

Week ended March 12, 8,067,000 tons; previous week, 5,771,000 tons; same week last year, 8,371,000 tons.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 22.—A moderately easy undertone cropped out in today's curb market. With immediate repurchasing needs of the shorts apparently satisfied in the few issues which had moved ahead yesterday, trading reflected an absence of other demand and prices had a tendency to sag.

NEW YORK, March 22.—(AP)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

WHEAT PRICES TAKE DROP

CHICAGO, March 22.—Influenced by unexpected downturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool, grain prices here underwent an early general setback today. Liverpool reported confidence shaken, and millers withdrawing from the market. Opening ¼@¾ down, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started unchanged to ¼ off, and subsequently showed a decline all around.

Eastern interests were reported as active sellers of wheat. One of the reasons ascribed was unsettling market effects of a statement by the wheat advisory committee of the Federal Farm Board. This statement recommended that stocks of wheat held by the Farm Board be moved promptly in order to save storage charges, and that Congress provide additional funds to enable the board to extend further credits to foreign purchasers.

Helping somewhat, however, to check price declines were reports that Europe's need for wheat remained substantial.

Then there was a transformation. The little nurse [illegible] look as [illegible] had slipped away from her before she had [illegible] him.

She felt them crowding around her, offering comfort, but she could not accept it. There was nothing left to her . . . nothing. Until the [illegible] sister brought the baby, his dark little face looking strangely flattened and pinched, like a sick little old man.

"He was ill, the poor little thing," Madame Nahlman said. "When you got sick he got sick too and so

A HAPPIER PLACE

But Lily Lou did not listen to them. She took him in her arms and held him close to her heart, smiling at them triumphantly through her tears.

She did not remember their taking him away. But when next she remembered things they brought him back to her and she knew that her troubles were over. The baby would get well. She'd get well.

Overnight the hospital changed from a place of torture infested with gleaming [illegible] who pushed and prodded and did unthinkable things to her to a haven of safety inhabited by ministering angels.

She could lie on her soft white bed, [illegible] serenely contented and know that the bubchen was close at hand that she had only to lift her eyes and Schwester Schnabel or Schwester Wolfe would be right there.

Warm April sun filtered in the sparkling windows. A milky blue sky was just visible beyond the roofs and spires. They had seemed gray before, but now they were silvery or fawn-colored, or opalescent in the sun.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

When they saw she was interested in the view, they dragged her bed close to the window with a proper accompaniment of Verdiese arpilla and whistling breathing.

There she could see the people passing on the street and when an old woman took up her stand at the corner to sell bananas she sent for a few and laughed and laughed because she was sure the old lady looked ill and followed it with her eyes.

Kind Dr. Saalberg came every day, pulled her hair and told her she must be careful not to get too fat, or [illegible] Chuckling delightedly at his own joke.

Mme. Nahlman came often with armfuls of flowers and [illegible] which the obliging sisters stuffed into boiling but strategic [illegible] tubes.

"You'll be visiting hours in a day or two now, Lily Lou," and then we'll be off to Paris as soon as Dr. Saalberg thinks you can travel. I've finished my season at the opera house."

Madame Nahlman had finished her season, and Lily Lou hadn't even heard her. Hadn't heard one of the concerts either. Where all the time had come to.

She didn't want to leave the hospital. She didn't want to leave Vienna. Why she hadn't seen a thing. Then let the nurses [illegible] Schnabel come home with her for the 10 days that were left before it was time to go back to Paris.

RETURN TO PARIS

Lily Lou's strength came back in bounding rushes of renewed vitality and joy of living. She felt better than ever. She loved everybody and everything. She wanted to kiss each [illegible] cheeked child she saw in the parks, to endow each beggar with a fortune. She adored the cafes where everyone ate outdoors on round tables with green painted iron chairs. She [illegible] on wild strawberries, drowned in billowing whipped cream, tried 50 kinds of little cakes, each more delectable than the other. And the coffee! Oh, wouldn't mother and the church ladies enjoy a cup of real Viennese coffee, with whipped cream on top.

She almost wept when Suzanne told her how gay the opera season had been and what a marvelous day Easter was with the streets fairly [illegible] with [illegible] and each white-veiled little girl and black [illegible] little boy dining in a cafe house [illegible] all decorated with flowers to [illegible] to make the first communion.

They went back to Paris. There was the Ritz [illegible] that Madame Nahlman had pronounced for the baby, a tall pink-cheeked [illegible] woman with [illegible] testimonials and an [illegible] redhead [illegible] waiting to hear him from Lily Lou's arms. She bore him off in triumph and Lily Lou [illegible] for [illegible] and keeping an ear cocked for possible protest from the [illegible] went into her room to take off her things.

For a moment she stood looking around the familiar little place with a sort of happy homecomingness. After all it was as much home as any other place. She hadn't liked it before, but she hadn't liked Vienna at first either. It seemed to take her a little time to get used to things. Maybe that was because she came from a little town. Maybe she should have stayed in Woodlawn and going in for school and married some [illegible] Bert Hallelb.

She [illegible] all her coffee and [illegible] Suzanne [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a Vendome [illegible] and an Aspirin for her [illegible] headaches. Lily Lou [illegible] but perceptibly [illegible] up.

Lily Lou turned from the mirror. Before the [illegible] lay on the bed. On the dresser was a little pile of letters that had been forwarded. With a premonition of bad news she ripped open the first one.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing has ambitions to become an opera singer. She meets Kentfield Sargent, son of a wealthy shipper. Ken is also interested in Peggy Sage, prominent society girl. Ken admits his love for Lily Lou and they go away and are married. When Lily Lou first sees Ken's mother she is told that Ken was not old enough to get married. Anxious days follow. Then Lily Lou is told by Ken's father that the marriage has been annulled. He gives her $500 and a ticket to New York. In New York she has a hard time getting a job and her money runs low. From a home town paper she reads that Ken has become engaged to Peggy. She learns that she is to become a mother. She gets a job as accompanist with Dwight Gwin, voice teacher. Nita Nahlman, famous opera singer, hears Lily Lou sing and offers to take her to Europe to study. Later Lily Lou explains her circumstances to the singer, expecting the offer to be withdrawn. She is invited to take the trip regardless and decides to do so. They go to England first and then to France. They go to Vienna, where Lily Lou becomes ill. She becomes the mother of a baby boy.

Madge Accompanies Dicky to Scene of Tragedy

As Dicky asked whether it was Harry or Bill, he evidently endured the grave lidings from Bill's anxious face and mine. He drew us rapidly around the corner of the house.

It's neither yet. I said and then told him quick of the discovery of the dead Chinese in the cornfield, for boys had made out that Hank had sent Mr. Underwood hurrying toward the spot.

I'll get the car," Dicky decided, starting on a run for the barn which made me exert all my strength to keep up with him.

"You think there is danger?" I did not dare finish the sentence.

It doesn't take a cobra long to strike," Dicky retorted, as we came up to the barn where the cars were stored. Mine was near the door and I slipped past Dicky and climbed into the seat before he could stop me.

"Here," he said authoritatively, "you're not going.

"Don't waste time on arguing, Dicky," I said as I backed the car out and turned it toward the hillside. "You know that there may be a situation up there where two would be handicapped by getting out of a car, and you may need a driver who can't do anything else. So I'm going. Jump in."

If I only had time to stop and think now, Dicky said, his voice divided between anger and something that resembled reluctant admiration, but as I haven't, come on, Hank."

He sprang into the car and Hank scrambled in after him. At the sound of the closing door I started the car along the winding path and we climbed the hill at top speed, utterly regardless of the bumps and stones which ordinarily we treat with respect.

[illegible] to slightly stop Hank, Dicky commanded, but we did not heed his [illegible]. For instantly as we neared the open cornfield, Bill appeared at the edge, shading his eyes from the bright sunlight and looking down the path. As he spied us he threw up one hand with a beckoning gesture and disappeared again among the tall stalks. I drew up the car to the spot where he had disappeared.

"I'll turn it around," I said as Dicky and Hank jumped to the ground and have it ready here for you.

"Good girl!" Dicky threw the commendatory words back over his shoulder as he and Hank raced into the cornfield, and I knew that he had forgiven me for my insistence in coming with them that indeed he now was frankly glad that I had accompanied them.

I turned the car around and drew up again at the place where we had entered the cornfield. Then through the pair of throttled motor I strained my ears for any sound from the cornfield.

My eyes received the news before my ears, for above the tallest stalks of corn I saw the head of Harry Underwood who towers above the ordinary man in stature before there was any sign of the others. He was moving in a curious awkward fashion and it was not until he had almost reached the edge of the cornfield with Dicky and Hank following close behind that I saw he was carrying the limp figure of the Chinese in his arms as he might the unconscious form of a child.

I pride myself upon being a poised woman in emergencies, but there was something in the thought of that lifeless figure done to death upon our own farm by the same men I was sure who had tried to wreak the same fate upon me that for a moment I felt positively ill.

"It's all right, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood said, miraculously divining what I was thinking. "He isn't dead. I wouldn't bring him out here if he were. But if you will get us in the house as fast as you can and with as little [illegible] as possible, there may be a million to one chance we can save him."

"You're sure you're all right, Madge?" he asked. "Don't you want me to drive?"

"No, indeed," I said quickly. "I am perfectly all right."

"But we'll have to go so slowly over those bumps that I should think it would be a good idea if one of the boys ran ahead and told Katherine to get a bed ready and telephone for a doctor."

"Right you are, Lady Fair," Mr. Underwood said. "Bill, you're on the track team at school. I understand. Show what you can do in a sprint."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

From the reports reaching the secretary's office of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club the meetings of the various chapters Saturday were gala events.

Several hundred more boys and girls of the Pittsburgh area were enrolled before the meetings opened. Here are just a few of the boys and girls that enrolled at the Prince Theater:

James Cail, Johnnie Damtrow, Angelo Pappas, Sophia Urbanik, Margaret Albanian, Mary Mansalian, Louise Gibka, Emily Farrah, Vincent Quigley, Jimmie Massrah, Mike Markvan.

After the new members were introduced from the stage the program was turned over to Myrna Heberling, the popular young mistress of ceremonies. The first number on the program was a dance by Miss Heberling. This was followed by Jimmie Brown singing "Can't We Talk It Over." Marie Salmon, a very talented young miss, next offered an "aesthetic" dance which the youngsters liked very much.

The members of the Manor chapter who attended the meeting Saturday were entertained with the orchestra made up of the members of the Schenley chapter. The youngsters from the Schenley played several popular numbers with the members of the audience singing. The Junior Komic Club orchestra from the Schenley Theater is in great demand to the other chapters for appearances at the meetings on Saturdays.

Manager McDonald of the Memorial (McKeesport) Theater announced to the children that next Saturday's meeting would be in the form of an Easter party with colored eggs and bunnies. This brought shouts of joy and gladness from the youngsters.

Before the meeting the following members were enrolled: Mildred Schneider, Violet Walters, Raymond Hamm, John Lowery, Bobby Deitzer, Joe Panara, Junior Fourteaugh, Harry Pieper, James Hutchinson, Thomas Miller, John Slinchak, Joseph and Julius Simon, Harry Ottinger, Harry Peterson, Albert Austin, Birdie Mae Crosier, Albert Fazek, Earl Reed, Elmer Queen, Dollie Kennedy, Donald Feick, Charles and Chester Berg, Glenn Inks, Frank and Myrtle Chapman, Frank Slaney.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters send your name and address together with the name and address of your parents, school you attend, day and date of your birth to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

Belmar: Richard Cammell, Robert Battin.

Etna-Harris: Adela Grouzel.

Harris (Downtown): Ralph Guthrie, William Flavell.

As a pleasant relief from all the world news of war and problems we turn to the Jewett City (Conn.) Press, which publishes the following items from its correspondent, Mrs. William Bitgood, in East Voluntown:

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's nephew Amerzo Bitgood spent Tuesday with them. They had an old-fashioned talk.

Mrs. Bitgood heard yesterday that her sister that lives on Sterling Hill wasn't so well. She has a hardening in her head.

The young man that stays with Jefferson Barber came down to Mr. Bitgood's and made some pulps so he could get out and do his chores.

Elisha Bitgood and daughter of Hope Valley visited with Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood Sunday.

Mrs. Bitgood thanks Mrs. Grace Gilbert, of Jewett City, for the nice present she sent her.

Mrs. Bitgood isn't feeling very good. Hasn't been feeling good for quite a while. She gets quite a few invitations to go out, but does not feel able to go.

Lee Bennington called on Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood Sunday. He and Mr. Bitgood visited the cemetery. He took him, and then and then took him back again.

State Aid Imperative

A Conference Should Be Held at Harrisburg at Once to Provide Adequate Relief for Unemployment Victims.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny County face a crisis, in the threatened starvation of scores of thousands of families, no less serious than if the state were to be invaded by a hostile army.

The Allegheny County Emergency Association's funds are about exhausted.

Mayor Charles H. Kline declared a public emergency yesterday and recommended to Council that $260,000 be appropriated for relief purposes. A drop in the bucket, it will not take care of the city's destitute for a month. Then another emergency will have to be declared, and another appropriation granted.

The city cannot continue such a course very long, for bankruptcy will be inevitable, and taxes on real estate will mount to a confiscatory level.

The state must come to the rescue.

A conference of business, welfare and political leaders should be held at Harrisburg at once and a program prepared that will furnish the means for immediate relief.

It is imperative that political and personal differences be forgotten in this emergency, and that leaders of every faction get together in singleness of purpose, just as they would if an enemy were marching on Harrisburg.

To judge from the petty personalities in which some of those to whom the public looks for leadership are indulging, they do not as yet appreciate the gravity of the situation. The citizens may have to look for new leadership. But in any event there must be no delay in facing the crisis.

If Pennsylvania's leaders of industry and government were all to get together in advocacy of a $5,000,000,000 program of federal public works, they probably could persuade Congress to adopt the plan.

But at all events nothing must be permitted to stand in the way of the adoption of a comprehensive program of state relief—and that at once.

It is time to face the facts, and to talk plainly. There have been unemployment riots in other parts of the country, and there is no reason to beguile ourselves into the belief that Pennsylvania can escape them if the unemployed are allowed to starve.

The people are in no mood to brook such obstacles to a relief movement as are to be found in the personal differences of Gov. Pinchot and Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the Allegheny County Emergency Association. These things must be and will be swept aside. The sooner the better, not only for the unemployed, but for everyone.

No Time for Slackness

The State Department of Labor Calls Attention to the Inexcusable Carelessness of Some Employers.

Anthony Huckestein, supervisor of the inspection bureau of the Pittsburgh district for the State Department of Labor and Industry, has issued a timely warning against the carelessness that some employers are showing in respect to observance of the sanitary and labor laws.

An increasing tendency has been noted to work girls and women a greater number of hours per day and per week than the law allows. Slovenliness has been alowed to creep into many establishments. Windows are allowed to go unwashed for months. Rest rooms are not being maintained in accordance with the prescribed standards. Not enough chairs are provided for the workers.

Now if ever there is need for efficiency and economy. They are not to be promoted by the practices of which Mr. Huckestein complains.

Dirty, disorderly plants are not conducive to good work. Tired, overworked girls are not as capable producers as those who do not exceed the legal limit of work hours and are allowed the rest periods that the law demands.

Employers can increase the efficiency of their workers and their factories, and in the long run will save money, if they will "clean up, paint up" and add to their payrolls enough additional workers to insure that all can do their tasks without undue fatigue.

Coal From Europe

What a Pity That Fuel Should Be Bought Abroad When Pennsylvania's Mines Could Supply It!

Officials of the New England Coal and Coke Company, a subsidiary of the Koppers Company, and with seven Pittsburghers on its board of directors, admit that they have been selling British coal to retail customers in Boston.

A dispatch from Boston states that the concern through which the company has been importing British coal has also imported 38,471 tons of Russian coal since December.

It is a pity that coal should be bought abroad when Pennsylvania can supply excellent fuel at exceptionally low prices.

The Predatory Female

Man will always be the winner in the battle of the sexes. Just as long as there are two women left in the world who can be incited to fight over him.

* * *

Now that all women wear warpaint and carry long cigaret holders, no man can tell a "safe" little vamp from a dangerous marrying-girl. He knows, when he wakes up mornings, whether he is going to find a marriage certificate under his pillow or a breach-of-promise suit on his hands.

The old-fashioned girl used to threaten to scream when a man kissed her; nowadays, a girl sometimes has to scream before she can MAKE him kiss her.

Every man will assure you that he hates "a made-up woman" and loathes lipsticks and rouge. But just try to flag him with "a sweet, pale mouth" and a shiny nose.

Most of a man's headaches come from never knowing when he's got enough to eat or drink. And most of his heartaches come from never knowing when he's got enough money, enough success—and above all enough women in his life.

* * *

The most difficult thing about marriage, these days, is not to succeed in being happy with your husband, but to succeed in getting anybody to BELIEVE that you are.

Why not "showers" for bridegrooms, too? Thus far, the wedding has been a time of glamour, triumph and presents for the bride—and nothing but a torment for the bridegroom. If showers for bridegrooms would make it seem more like a dream and less like a nightmare, perhaps there might be more weddings.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 22.—It is axiomatic that with millions New Yorkers freeze up and friendships are limited to a handful. The richest men in America have no more than half a dozen intimates. Morgan is said to have three. Rockefeller, his son. A number isolate themselves on yachts in foreign waters.

With enormous wealth comes the trail of gleaners and the army of surething boys. Even close friends are not immune in the effort to get something for nothing. As a result the very rich must resort to the unpleasant barricade of a glacial aloofness.

Many millionaires want to fraternize, but in unbending they frequently become targets for grandiose gestures, requests for market tips and capital to float this venture and that. One of America's greatest writers is an intimate of a multi-millionaire.

In a duck-blind down south in the pink of a dawn the rich friend broke a long silence with: "Do you know why I like you?" The writer responded facetiously with: "Certainly. It's personal charm coupled with manly beauty." There was a prolonged and meditative hush.

Then the millionaire explained: "I enjoy being with you because you are the only person who has ever accepted me for myself alone. You are the single individual, since coming into large wealth who never asked anything save a simple companionship."

He told of a purely platonic friendship with a night club hostess years ago. He and his wife used to drop into the hotel where she presided to hear her patter. One day she sent him a check for $10,000 with a note: "Invest this for me." He did, doubled it in 90 days and sent her the total.

She, expecting more, was disappointed and friendship faded. Two maiden aunts turned over $125,000 in the same way. He tripled it in a stock and got them out. But the stock shot up 200 points after that and the dear old ladies never spoke to him again.

I don't know how department store escalators affect others, but just a tiny ride and I cannot regain equilibrium for several minutes. It recalls a cheerful cabin steward on an English boat. As I lay in a wan pallor and trying to cling to a heaving bunk, one popped in and chirped brightly: "A bit tippy, sir!" That's how I feel after an escalator ride—a bit tippy.

The most leisurely cafe in town to my notion is the Lafayette, brooding so picturesquely on the fringe of Washington Square. Long after luncheon and dinner, patrons linger playing cubito, dominoes and chess. Outside at dusk remains an almost forgotten aura of the days of oiled ringlets, curtsies and sleek cobs.

A few blocks northward was a glittering shop, marking another adventure into mechanical high-speed living—a 5-cent electric shine shop. A spic and span attendant directing customers to chairs seemed the sole employe. Such experiments are rather cloying to lonely city dwellers seeking human contact. Most of us have shoe shines in public for conversation with the shiner, a sort of fusion of commerce and chatter. All such places—automats, self this and self that—somehow recall the gloomy farewell of the tragic child suicide in Jude the Obscure: "Done because there are too many of us."

I prefer the high bootblack chair near the door in the rush of Saturday night at the barber shop back home. There Doc Black rather obscured his professional perfection with jovial sallies. After flicking a quick bolero with his shoe rag he whisked an aeka-ta, acka-ta allegro with a long clothes broom and archly inquired: "Goin' out among 'em, Cap'n?" And generally we were!

The perplexities of mass population proved a further embarrassment in the confusing glow of Times Square. In trying gracefully to sidestep two brightly roused and onrushing flappers I began to jockey back and forth skittishly. Finally one of them snipped: "Grandpa wants to play!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I have a friend. We have known each other for years. Our work brings us together constantly. And yet most of the time our friendship is a miserable affair.

We have many interests in common. We have an honest regard for each other. We are always delighted to see each other. But we simply can't get along. The instant we meet our mutual irritation starts. There is no one big thing on which we disagree, but there are a thousand trifles.

For instance, I'm apt to exaggerate; get smoked up, or excited; make vague, disjointed statements to prove my point. I have a lively mind, but a messy one.

On the other hand, my friend's interests are fewer than mine, but he is very careful and orderly in all that he says and does. His very thoughts are tidy, precise.

I begin to rave about something; make the most dramatic statements; argue all over the lot. Immediately my friend becomes cool, collected—and scornful. He demands authority for such and such a remark. Frequently I can't give it. Why should I give it? I despise authorities! I believe in following one's heart! I refuse to be bound by data and statistics!

All this I tell my friend with increasing violence. At first I am merely trying to defend myself. Presently, however, I am bending all my efforts to showing him up, to making him look like a dented nickel.

Naturally, the hotter and ruder I get, the colder and more polite he becomes. Nasty nice! We have entirely forgotten we are friends. We are, in our own way, trying to get even with the other fellow—trying to bully and wound.

For years our friendship has gone like that. The other day I was thinking it over. We'd had a particularly bitter quarrel. We hadn't seen each other for days. I was resentful, yet lonely. Why couldn't we be friends—real friends?

And suddenly, as one sometimes does, I saw why we couldn't.

We have never been willing to accept each other "as is." We have always tried to change each other into our personal pattern.

Both of us are, in our different ways, admirable people.

My friend's desire for orderliness is a fine thing. His prudence, his conservatism, his regard for detail, his respect for technique and discipline—these are all splendid qualities.

On the other hand, I'm not such a flop myself. My enthusiasm, my recklessness and initiative and independence—they're good and necessary qualities, too.

Yes, we're both good eggs. And we could have a great time working and thinking together if we could accept each other "as is." But that's just what we won't do.

I want to make my friend as excitable and reckless as myself.

He wants to make me as cool and careful as himself.

And why do we do it? Because we want to help the other fellow? No. We don't care a hoot about helping him. We do it because we want to show off and prove our own superiority.

But suppose we could each succeed in our desire, what then? Why, then my friend would be only a tiresome duplicate of me, and I would be only an insipid yes-shadow of him—and we'd bore each other to tears!

How silly it all is—this everlasting desire to make the other fellow over to our own pattern! What splendid human adventures we miss! What tang and color, mystery and fragrance and charm we destroy!

MAYBE.

Trade and Swindling Securities

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The government finds a shocking shrinkage in income taxes this year—as it expected. This shrinkage comes at the moment we must find ways to rid ourselves of a two billion dollar deficit, and when almost a billion and a quarter must be raised by extraordinary taxes. There is little help to be expected from the custom houses—for we have shut off that source of revenue by raising all but insurmountable barriers against trade. This is something worth thinking about today as we look forward to the murderous taxes of next year.

Dr. H. Parker Willis calls attention to the effect of the Grundy tariff on manufacturers and farmers, and he might have gone into the effect on revenue as well.

He cites the case of companies that have done a profitable business that will be unable to make profits, if they even make both ends meet, next year. He shows this is due to the loss of their export trade; and that this loss is due to the tariff wall. He also shows the absurdity of the assumption of economic isolationists that we can live unto ourselves, and prosper in business. Everyone is beginning to see that now.

* * *

There Are Economists—And Economists

But Dr. Willis evidently has not followed the political phase of the matter with the same intelligence he shows in the economic phase. He says:

"What is the popular reaction to this situation and the reply of the politicians? Simply that we must and can build up our own prosperity independently of the rest of the world."

There are politicians of the sort indicated; but there are other politicians who have seen the effect of our Grundy act and similar acts as soon as the economists. There is nothing that Dr. Willis says today that the Democrats in Congress did not say when the Grundy act was pending. There is no scientific reason given by Dr. Willis now that was not advanced by that eminent politician, Senator Cordell Hull, time and time again while the fight was on. In truth, the Democratic "politicians" in Congress had set forth every reason the thousand leading economists set forth in their futile plea to Mr. Hoover for a veto many months before.

There are economists—and economists; for instance, Dr. Julius Klein, the economist of the administration, and Dr. Willis.

Just as there are politicians and politicians; for example, Reed, Smoot and Cordell Hull.

And if we are to get away from the insanity and devastation of economic isolation it will be through the application of the principles of such politicians as Cordell Hull.

* * *

Our Civilization Rests on Trade

But we can subscribe to Dr. Willis' conclusion:

"Various panaceas and other efforts artificially to restore business to a state more nearly normal will avail us little so long as we persist, ostrich-like, to hide our heads from the troublesome tariff problem."

There can be no restoration of anything remotely like prosperity until something is done for the restoration of trade; for not only our prosperity, but our system of civilization rests on trade.

Something must be done to recover the foreign markets which the administration threw away, and that can be done only through some such method as that incorporated in the House bill pending in the Senate. So long as we keep up a Chinese wall against trade there will be no trade.

And something must be done to create purchasing power in the people at home; and that can only be brought about by furnishing jobs for the more than 8,000,000 bread winners denied the right to work. Since factories will not put more men to work until the purchasing power of the masses has been materially lifted, how can these men find jobs and wages to spend? No one, so far as we know, has suggested any other plan than that of a prosperity loan for needed public works.

* * *

No One Warned The People

Dr. Willis complains that we are hearing much about these swindling foreign loans floated by international bankers among innocent investors; but little about the restoration of trade. We have made that comment many times. The administration can only think of artificial means to prevent further collapses of industries and banks; it has no stomach apparently for the most essential and fundamental thing of all—the restoration of trade.

But no nation, with the unlimited natural resources and wealth of the United States, with the most effective manpower in the world, could have been brought to the present state of complete prostration by any one blunder. We are getting the accumulated result of multitudinous blunders—blunders, and worse.

And, in the case of the foreign securities floated by the international bankers among innocent investors, we have something worse than blunders. Senator Johnson's investigation has shown that. It was not a blunder of judgment which put the Peruvian loan out among the people here. The Commercial attache in Peru warned against it; and he was rebuked according to his own statement. The international bankers wanted the commission, whatever happened to the investor; and the administration wanted to help the international bankers.

There was no one who wanted to protect and warn the people in the case of these loans; just as there was no one who wanted to warn the people against the crazy and almost criminal market of 1928.

* * *

Government Reassured The People

In both cases the people's government not only did not warn the people, but intentionally, in some instances, and possibly unintentionally in others, reassured the people.

In the case of the foreign loans it at least permitted itself to be put in the position of sanctioning them. That is the impression it knew that the people got.

And this does not take into consideration the Barco concession in Colombia, and the disregarding of the warning of the Peruvian commercial attache.

But, in the case of the crazy market here, the administration actively sought to convince the people that everything was "fundamentally sound."

The trouble with the American government during the last 10 years has been that it has been market-minded, money-minded, and not man-minded.

It was a subordinate of Mr. Hoover in the Department of Commerce, who said:

"Behind a governmental policy such as this the worst of international bankers may hide and the meanest of exploiters may skulk."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As a person of mature age are you like a child when it becomes dissatisfied with conditions it must endure?

Do you fail to take pleasure out of the car you own because you'd like a better one?

To be constantly complaining about the plainness of your worldly goods robs you of enjoyment as well as those associated with you.

How about it, do you often complain because you cannot have as expensive things as some of your friends?
